STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Mike Kasperak died Sunday, finally succumbing to "a fantastic galaxy of complications" which doctors could not clear up following implanting of a housewife's heart in his chest 15 days ago.

Dr. Norman F. Shumway, who headed the heart transplant team the night of Jan. 6, was at Kasperak's bedside when the retired steelworker died at 1:43 a.m.

Kasperak, 54, who received the heart of Virginia White, 43, was the fourth person in history to have a diseased heart replaced.

The third still lives. He is Philip Blaiberg of Cape Town, South Africa, who was reported doing well in his 20th day.

Dr. Shumway, looking haggard and unhappy, told a news conference at Stanford University Medical Center, "We don't have enough information at this time to decide whether there was any element of success in this venture."

Obviously, Dr. Shumway said, from the point of view of the patient, there was no success.

"Only when a patient leaves the hospital can any procedure be called a success," he said.

"We think that we are in the process of making observations of tremendous importance to other possible (heart) recipients, and the medical community as well."

"Mr. Kasperak was a terminal patient who had only 15 days of life after transplant, but what should be emphasized is that during this time he survived a fantastic galaxy of complications, which we have seen before in other heart patients, but never in such profusion."

Problems
"We think that because of his cardiac action he was able to survive renal (kidney) and liver failures and then, following this, three major operations, done during the time his circulation was moved by the transplanted heart."

"This gives us some hope, and is in fact an encouraging item. We feel that any one of these complications would have been lethal had it not been for the cardiac transplant."

As to the precise cause of death, Shumway continued, "I think the turning point came with the hemorrhage from the stomach last Thursday."

"He was in a chair, breathing without artificial respiration, and doing well until the final episode of massive hemorrhaging from the stomach which required two operations."

Mrs. White's heart was functioning extremely well, Dr. Shumway said.

"No detriment whatever," he said, "was observed by disparity of size."

Transplant demands evaluation

CHICAGO (AP) — Members of the Stanford University medical team which performed the heart transplant operation on Mike Kasperak, 54, stressed the need today for better physical evaluation of potential transplant patients.

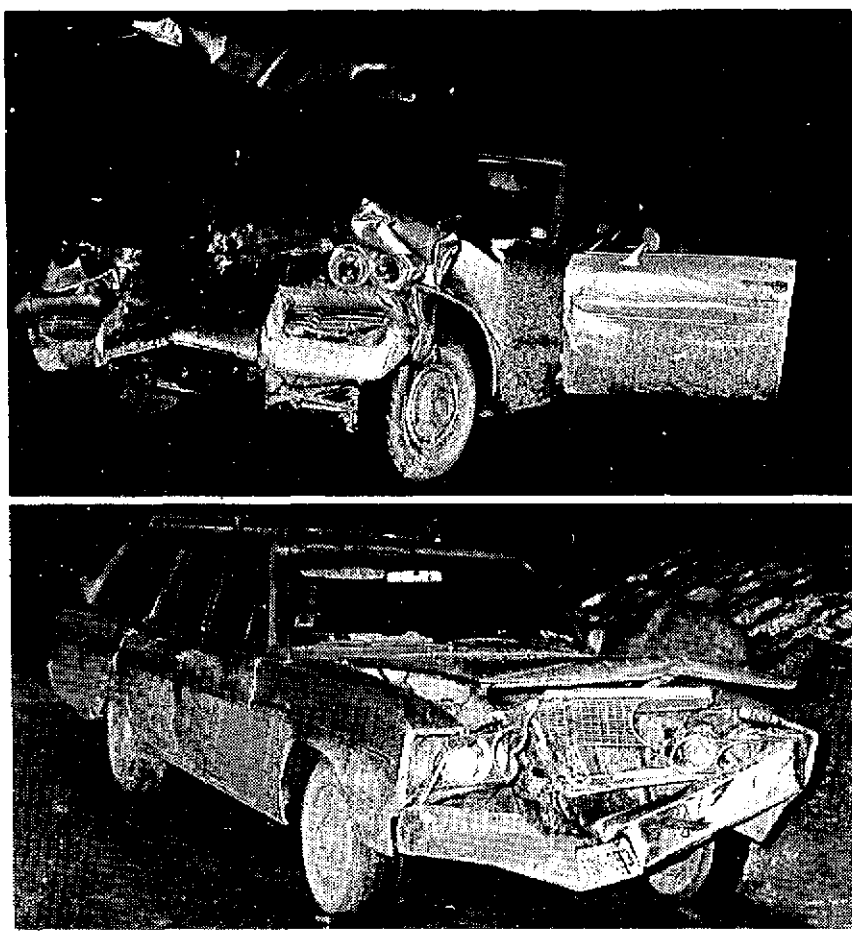

The remarks of Dr. Norman Shumway and Dr. Donald C. Harrison were reported in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Dr. Shumway headed the surgical team which performed the operation on Kasperak who died Sunday, 15 days after receiving the heart of a 43-year-old woman.

"The severely ill and the comatose are the patients with whom we must work," Dr. Shumway told the JAMA. "But there may very well be a level of organ function below which we should not perform such an operation. We do not yet know, however, what the level might be."

Complications
"The reason that complications did not clear quickly in this patient (Kasperak)," Dr. Shumway said, "as they did in the case of Dr. Christiana Barnard in South Africa, is due, I believe, to the advanced chronic state of these complications in our patient." Dr. Harrison, head of Stanford's department of cardiology, said that in the future, potential candidates for transplantation probably should be hospitalized well in advance of surgery. He said that all organ functions should be evaluated and minimal functional criteria established.

The journal also published the remarks of Dr. J.C. Callaghan, a Canadian surgeon from the University of Alberta.

Injuries numerous as ice causes two Rt. 80 accidents

STROUDSBURG — Five persons were injured Sunday at 8:10 p.m. in a four-car crash on ice covered Interstate Rt. 80, just east of the eastbound W. Main Street entrance.

Most seriously injured was Jean Conroy of Stroudsburg with an injury to the left leg and a cut above the left eye.

The others complained of neck and back pains. Some went to the General Hospital of Monroe County for X-rays. Others told police they would contact their family doctor.

According to Stroudsburg

Borough Police, James J. Conroy of 518 Sarah St., Stroudsburg, was traveling east on Rt. 80 and he attempted to stop after seeing a car stop in the highway ahead of him.

As he attempted to stop he hit a car driven by Florence Christman of 67 Prospect St., East Stroudsburg, which was stopped on the highway.

The Christman car was struck in the rear with such force the front seat of the car was torn loose from its mountings and thrown to the median.

Marilyn B. Davis of Kenil, N. J., who was driving the third car, saw what had occurred and she attempted to stop but slid on the icy roadway, struck the Conroy car and then crossed the highway and came to a stop.

The driver of the fourth car, Bernadine D. Carroll of Scranton, saw the cars in front of her and she attempted to slow down but started to slide on the ice. She attempted to go between two of the wrecked cars but could not make it and hit the Conroy vehicle.

Florence Christman told police that she was wearing a seat belt at the time of the crash and that she was not injured because of the safety device.

Police estimate damage as follows: Conroy's car, $1,600; Christman's car, $400; Davis' vehicle, $900, and Carroll's car, more than $100.

Icy highways also caused another one-car accident on Interstate Rt. 80 at Swiftwater.

Five persons were taken to the hospital but late last night it was not known if they were to be admitted or released.

Taken to the hospital by State Police from Mount Pocono were Mrs. Lester Davis, 41, of Tusville, N. J.; her three children, Carol, 10; Jane and John, 8, and Mrs. Eleanor Tivador, Trenton, N. J.

According to police, Mrs. Davis was traveling east on Rt. 80 when her car hit an icy spot and went over the guard rails and down an 80-foot embankment.

This accident happened at 7:30 p.m.

A third accident at 7:30 p.m. on Rt. 115 was investigated by State Police from Fern Ridge. They reported no injuries.

Police said a car driven by Charles Dotter, 58, of Blakeslee, was traveling south on Rt. 115 when it hit an icy patch on the road, slid off the right side, hit a snow bank and came to a stop in a wooded area just off the highway.

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — The X15 rocket plane apparently has broken its last record.

"We hope to make a few more flights this year," a spokesman said after the U.S. space agency cut the stubby-winged aerospace dart from its 1968-69 budget. "But none will try for new speed or altitude marks."

The X15, which has hit 4,534 miles an hour and 354,200 feet, had been scheduled to attempt to reach 5,000 m.p.h. sometime this year.

Instead, the 12-year, $300-million program is to come to an end this fall with the X15's last chores being dull duty as a research workhorse, testing atmospheric re-entry conditions future satellite-to-ground ferries will encounter.

The highly successful program, exploring the little-known region between space orbit and the thin upper air where supersonic transports will fly, suffered its first major setback last Nov. 15 with the death of Air Force Maj. Michael Adams.

Adams crashed in the desert near here after his X15 broke up in descent from a flight to 265,000 feet. An official report on the cause of the accident is expected next month.

The crash left the program with two X15s, one of which is undergoing repairs after air friction burned a hole in its tail while setting the 4,534 m.p.h. record last October.

Marines inflict heavy losses

SAIGON (AP) — Troops of a veteran North Vietnamese division believed based in Laos attacked U.S. Marines for the second straight day in the jungled hills of South Vietnam's north-west corner Sunday but were reported taking heavy casualties.

The Marine command at Dung Ita estimated the enemy unit at 400-500 men but said 128 of them had been killed in two days of sharp fighting in the hills around Khe Sanh. Marine losses were put at 14 men killed and 42 wounded seriously enough to require medical evacuation. The number of Marines less seriously wounded was not reported.

Enemy rockets, crashing in out of a morning fog, destroyed several Leatherneck huts at the Khe Sanh combat base and sent white smoke columns drifting into the hills. Two Marine helicopters were damaged on the ground.

The Marines identified the Communist troops as members of the 325C Division which launched a spring offensive in the Khe Sanh area last year and retreated after 1,000 of its men were killed or wounded.

Firemen move dangerous gas

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa. (AP) — An emergency crew cautiously moved a derailed chemical car back into an upright position Sunday night and began preparations to pump out its toxic contents.

Plans called for the some 10,000 gallons of ethylbenzene — a liquid chemical used in the production of gasoline — to be pumped into awaiting tanker trucks.

At least three foam trucks were standing by, ready to spray the tanker car as a precaution against a fire or explosion.

"They turned the tank car upright and are getting ready to pump the stuff out of it," said Terry Abbott, a fireman with the Chambersburg Fire Department.

The chemical car was one of six Western Maryland Railway Co. cars which left the tracks in this Central Pennsylvania town Sunday afternoon.

Two children die in fire

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP) — Two children were killed Sunday when a fire struck a two-story frame home in nearby Glenburn Township.

The victims were identified as 3-year-old Robert Graham and his 15-month-old brother Scott. Firemen said initial efforts by the parents to rescue the children were blocked by flames and later efforts by firemen wearing asbestos protective suits were unsuccessful.

The parents and grandmother, Mrs. Mary Zipay, escaped safely.

Clifford is scrutinized

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of the McNamara team are waiting to see how Clark Clifford operates as secretary of defense before deciding whether they want to stay on under him at the Pentagon.

Except for his reputation as presidential adviser and politically adept lawyer, Clifford is an unknown quantity to many of the economists, scientists, engineers and other specialists drawn into key Pentagon posts by Robert S. McNamara.

There has been a widely held belief that the team will start to disband when McNamara departs, before March, to become head of the World Bank after seven years as defense boss.

But one McNamara associate said much will depend on the extent to which the new secretary relies on these specialists, many of whom could command higher salaries in private employment.

It is not unusual in a cabinet switch for an incoming department head to try to retain his predecessor's experienced aides, at least for a while, to smooth the transition. Eventually the new cabinet officer gets his own people.

Clifford told White House newsmen Friday he does not now contemplate any changes in the administration of the defense Department and he intends to "carry on the remarkable and unique accomplishments" of McNamara.

This is the sort of thing that normally is said. Only time will show whether this statement was a ritual amenity or a serious declaration of intent.

Clifford, considered a hawk, is believed to favor a harder line on the Vietnam war than does McNamara in some respects. On this question, the new defense secretary conceivably could part company with some members of the McNamara team.

It should be noted that President Johnson said Clifford was one of those recommended to him by McNamara as a possible successor. Defense officials confirmed that Clifford's name was one of four put forward by McNamara.

Another name on McNamara's list was that of his present second in command, Deputy Secretary of Defense Paul H. Nitze. Since Nitze was passed over for the top job, speculation is rife that he will be among the first to quit. He is independently wealthy.

There is one area in which Clifford and McNamara are in apparently close agreement. Clifford praised the outgoing defense secretary for achieving many objectives of the armed services unification law that Intelligence reports say the division had been reinforced and now is back to full strength of 12,000 men, apparently in preparation for another offensive as soon as the monsoons clear and weather permits a sustained campaign.

Marine officers said they could not tell whether the attacks around Khe Sanh signaled the start of the new offensive. It seemed unlikely, however, because the Communists have declared a seven-day truce for Tet — the Vietnamese lunar new year — which begins next Monday.

The truce declared by the allies is for 36 hours.

The North Vietnamese launched heavy artillery and ground attacks on the Marine stronghold at Khe Sanh and allied positions around it. The Khe Sanh Valley is seven miles east of Laos and 16 miles south of the demilitarized zone dividing the two Vietnams.

Khe Sanh, which guards the northwest approaches to South Vietnam, came under a withering rocket and mortar attack from North Vietnamese gunners during the morning fog that hampered American bombers in striking back.

The Reds also launched mortar and ground attacks on three strategic Marine hill positions overlooking infiltration routes from Laos, a nearby Special Forces camp and three Marine combined action platoons in the town of Khe Sanh itself.

The Special Forces Green Beret camp is at Lang Vei, west of Khe Sanh in the jungled hills that dominate the area.

Allies shorten lunar truce

SAIGON (AP) — An allied decision to shorten the lunar new year truce from 48 hours to 36 was taken to mean here Sunday the United States has no intention of extending its pause in the bombing of North Vietnam beyond the cease-fire period.

There have been suggestions from various international quarters that President Johnson should order the new year bombing pause extended as one way of testing Hanoi on its assertion that it will talk peace if the bombing is stopped.

Premier Nguyen an Loc announced the shortening of the cease-fire period in a memo to the South Vietnamese Ministry of Defense Secretary. Informants said U.S. concurrence came directly from the White House.

The decision means the allied truce will run from 6 p.m. Saigon time next Monday to 6 a.m. Jan. 31, Saigon time is 13 hours ahead of Eastern Standard Time.

The Viet Cong has announced it intends to observe a seven-day truce running from 1 a.m. Saturday until 1 a.m. Feb. 3.

Tet

The lunar new year—called Tet by the Vietnamese—begins with the new moon Jan. 30.

Coinciding with the allied decision were these developments:

—Nhan Dan, the official Communist party newspaper of North Vietnam, said the San Antonio peace formula put forth by President Johnson "constitutes very insolent conditions."

—Hanoi's Vietnam News Agency carried a Viet Cong statement similar in tone to that of Nhan Dan's editorial. Referring to Johnson's terms for halting the bombing, the Viet Cong statement said: "Since the United States is conducting an aggression, it must stop its aggression, and since it is bombing without reason a sovereign state, it must put an end to the bombing. There is no condition at all."

The U.S. Military Command said captured enemy documents showed the Communists had planned to funnel 15,000 troops into the northernmost province of South Vietnam during the Christmas truce.

Sicilians evacuated

PALERMO, Sicily (AP) — Thousands of survivors of the Sicilian earthquake were evacuated from refugee tent camps Sunday to escape bitter winter weather and the growing problem of sickness.

One week after the quake struck the western end of the island, more than 40,000 survivors were still living in mud, filth and confusion worsened by intermittent rain, snow and driving winds.

With cases of scarlet fever, pneumonia, and chicken pox rising, authorities ordered a massive evacuation to move refugees into solid buildings in cities on the edge of the disaster area.

Famous Lincoln phrases again fill Ford's Theater

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Let us strive to achieve and cherish a just and lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations."

These words of Abraham Lincoln echoed Sunday in Ford's Theater, where he was fatally shot over a century ago.

They were quoted by Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey in dedicating the restoration of the theater to its condition the night that the president was assassinated April 14, 1865.

Humphrey, one of several dignitaries who joined in dedicating the three-year $2.7-million

National Park Service project, told an audience of about 800 that some of Lincoln's speeches apply during the Vietnam war as in Civil War days.

Excerpts from other Lincoln speeches were read by Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., and Sen. Milton R. Young, R-N.D., who sponsored the first Ford's theater restoration bill 22 years ago.

Secretary of Interior Stewart L. Udall said he and Park Service officials are pleased to "rededicate this building as a place for entertainment and pleasure — the purpose for which it was originally intended."

After the ceremony, members of Congress and others in the audience inspected the theater, a museum in the basement, and the restored hotel room across the street where Lincoln died.

Plays depicting life in the 1860s will be presented at the theater, beginning Feb. 26. The theater, restored in gleaming white with gold and red trim, seats 1,700 in the main floor and in two balconies.

But the flag-draped box where Lincoln was wounded will never be occupied again.

Ford's Theater was reactivated Sunday for the first time since President Abraham Lincoln was shot there 103 years ago. Here, during the ceremonies, Sen. Charles Percy (R-Ill.), center at podium, reads excerpts from Lincoln speeches. At upper center is the flag-draped box where Lincoln was shot. In lower center is Vice President and Mrs. Humphrey.

Famous Lincoln phrases again fill Ford's Theater

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Let us strive to achieve and cherish a just and lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations."

These words of Abraham Lincoln echoed Sunday in Ford's Theater, where he was fatally shot over a century ago.

They were quoted by Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey in dedicating the restoration of the theater to its condition the night that the president was assassinated April 14, 1865.

Humphrey, one of several dignitaries who joined in dedicating the three-year $2.7-million

National Park Service project, told an audience of about 800 that some of Lincoln's speeches, apply during the Vietnam war as in Civil War days.

Excerpts from other Lincoln speeches were read by Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., and Sen. Milton R. Young, R-N.D., who sponsored the first Ford's theater restoration bill 22 years ago.

Secretary of Interior Stewart L. Udall said he and Park Service officials are pleased to "rededicate this building as a place for entertainment and pleasure—the purpose for which it was originally intended."

After the ceremony, members of Congress and others in the audience inspected the theater, a museum in the basement, and the restored hotel room across the street where Lincoln died.

Plays depicting life in the 1860s will be presented at the theater, beginning Feb. 26. The theater, restored in gleaming white with gold and red trim, seats 1,700 in the main floor and in two balconies.

But the flag-draped box where Lincoln was wounded will never be occupied again.

Good Morning!

Then there was the fellow who gave up smoking for his health and took up chewing toothpicks instead. Now he's got Dutch Elm disease.

What an Inventory Hangover!

OUR MANAGER— THE DOG!

In spite of a booming 1967, our manager feels like a dog—in fact he's in the doghouse—and he's taking it out on everyone in the store.

With our remodeling pretty well finished, all headaches were supposed to have ended and we were supposed to have a peaceful 1968. Instead of that, we found all kinds of things while taking inventory that we were just sure had long since gone out into your homes. This leaves us with lots of odds and ends, slightly damaged pieces and discontinued items—as well as perfect which just got lost in the shuffle.

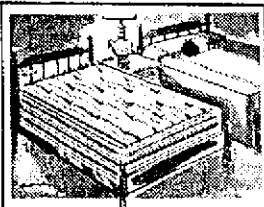

Our first order of business in 1968 at A. C. Miller Furniture is to clean house. This can best be accomplished by offering you these items at terrific bargains. This will also give us room for new merchandise now on order for the grand opening of our newly remodeled store, also our manager should be happy—completely house broken, wagging tail, and no more barking!

BLACK CHAIR, ANYONE? When you come in the store and see six black vinyl recliners all in a row, you'll probably think we're in mourning... and maybe we should be. These weren't the most brilliant buy we ever made. Although they don't look bad, they are something less than perfect. However, on the plus side, we were told that if they came out of the carton in one piece, they are usually okay. So, we are offering these six chairs, (that we tried out and they work fine), for just $47.88 each. They were made to sell for $99 so they must be better than our informant said. Anyway, come in and see for yourself, you may be pleasantly surprised.

ROCK-A-BYE, MOMMY. In a Rocker-Recliner, we've formed a "Be Kind to Mother" Club (of course not everyone in the store agrees, since some of them feel that Mother's already have the advantage but on with the story)... Our first order of business was to get the manager to place on sale some rocker-recliners just right for Mom (and that wasn't easy 'cause our Manager is one of those who thinks Mothers have a racket). Anyway, after much arm twisting, he agreed to sell a Rocker-Recliner which comes in your choice of blue, gold, green or brown fabric, (regular price $99) for just $73.88. He may change his mind at anytime, so get in today.

ODD CHAIRS. This term is often used to designate a chair which does not match the sofa, but in this instance, we mean ODD, not just an odd chair but odd looking. Fortunately, we only have two of these... in turquoise. They might just happen to look good in your living room (they sure don't do much for our display) and if you're lucky enough to be able to use them, we'll make it worth your while... just $28.88 each.

OUT OF THE RAT RACE... And onto a recliner 20 minutes a day... and you'll probably be part of the human race longer... a happier part. L.E.A.N. back in a recliner and let the cares of the world drift away. What's that? No recliner in your house. For shame, but we have a solution for you. Right now we have a discontinued model of the incomparable Stratolounger. These recliners, with fabric covers of good wearing nylon, are probably still around after Christmas only because the colors didn't happen to match some people's color schemes. But, if you can use a recliner in either pumpkin or blue, you're on. These Stratoloungers which should sell for $299 are yours for just $110. But hurry, at this price any color will sell.

LET THERE BE LIGHT. For a while we were quite short of lamps (at least that's what we thought). We kept looking in all the dark corners when some bright brain suggests we turn on all the lights. Lo and behold... Lamps... Lamps... and more lamps. Have we got lamps! Here's just a few that we must unload.

TWO RED LAMPS. Evidently not everyone decorates in red... but if you can use them, we have two large red lamps priced at just $8.00 each.

MAN LEFT ALONE. There was a pair of these lamps... the man and woman... but the woman figure has disappeared (we don't ask questions) so now we have just the male figure left. These lamps did sell for $25 each but all by itself the remaining one will go for $5 (and you may want to throw away shade).

NEW MATR!? Those Daystrom people really know how to construct a dinette set. Their chairs are guaranteed not to wobble, sag or do any of those other undesirable things. The tables are really built to last but somehow we question their arithmetic. It may just be that new math which we don't understand that explains why the tag says a 7 piece set with four chairs for $125. No matter how many times we count using our fingers, (of course), we can only come up with five pieces... so it's yours... a five piece Daystrom dinette set... for only $78.

HONEYMOON SPECIAL. Terrific for cuddly couples who never want to be far from each other. This compact, sturdy white drop leaf table with two chairs... was $39.00... Now just $25. (If you don't happen to be a cuddly couple... you may still want one... it's so easy to reach across this table to knock the morning paper out of his hands). Seriously, this set is convenient with its drop leaf sides that allows it to fit in the smallest space... just $25 for table and two chairs.

BE KIND TO YOUR FOUR LEGGED FRIENDS. This peacan furniture table with four chairs would need kindness and gentleness but anything it might lack in strength, it compensates for in odd looks. If it fits in with your decor and you need a new dinette set, here's one for just $42 (was $55). Come in and see it. If you can't use it, be kind to your friends and tell them about it (even if they don't have four legs).

NOT FOR SQUARES. This 38" diameter walnut formica dining room table (can be oval when you put in the 10" leaf) has been reduced for quick sale from $69 to $25. Don't be a square and miss this bargain.

WANNA KNOW SECRET? Have you been wondering how we can offer such savings to you the year round and still come up with these terrific buys (at even greater savings) during one of our very special sales. Actually, it's quite simple. You see, A. C. Miller Furniture is a branch of Rosen Furniture, Incorporated and just one of four stores. Common sense would tell you that when you buy stock for four stores you are bound to get better deals so we just pass them on to you. Also we'd like to invite you to visit our other stores...

Rosen's in Hazleton, Kile's in Berwick and Danville. Our aim is to help you find the right items at the right prices and we like to feel that we are real specialists when it comes to this. Come in and get acquainted... we enjoy serving you... and that's no secret... our customers have been telling it all over town.

WHAT CAN WE SAY? It doesn't happen often but sometimes there's just not much we can say about an item. What can we say about this $89 seven piece dinette except one thing... it's cheap... and at $39... it's even cheaper.

Within a radius of fifty miles exception a very few cash and carry items.

MILITARY OFFICERS... ATTENTION! Gold braided shiny patent leather bar with two matching stools provides the ideal place for "old soldiers to fade away." Formica bar top and shelves will withstand many a campaign... Mirror in center of back bar allows you to check your military bearing at all times and the light above casts some interesting reflections. This set did sell for $229, a special now offered to you at $126 (ratios not included). This 4 piece set is sold as is since it received a few wounds in some military campaign.

SALEM BAR GROUP (NEVER USED BY PURITANS)... Great for serving your particular witches brew. Four piece bar group includes bar, back bar and two stools in maple with early american fabric trim on back bar and stools. This set did sell for $179 but the truth of the matter is the lamination on the back bar is delaminating so the price as is during this sale is only $90. On the other hand, if you have a little patience, we can have the bar repaired for you and it will only cost you $90 for the four piece set.

SAD STORY OF AN INEFFICIENT COMPANY. We have on our floor a lovely Antique Pine Hutch from a company which will remain unnamed. This hutch has two shelves (open), three drawers across the center and three compartments below. There is a front piece which folds up to give a "dry sink" effect. Now, doesn't that sound like just what any smart furniture buyer would stock in his store? That's what we thought... but then came the catch... the delivery from this company is lousy. So, if you have use for an antique pine hutch which did sell for $259 for just $180... it's yours (However, should you want any matching pieces, we want to warn you that you would probably be old and gray before they were shipped by this company).

SO NEW! IT'S STILL GREEN. This green colonial sofa and chair hasn't been on the floor long enough to ripen nor for us to find out how it's gonna sell... but the manager says... Cross out that $449 price (just for the sale, of course)... we're gonna give our customers a real bargain... at $257. Now, we sat on this set and checked it out and we're sure the manager hasn't found out how very comfortable it is or he'd never have made such a drastic statement... so hurry in before he gets a chance to check it out and the price goes back up.

WANT TO SEE A GROWN MAY CRY? At the original price of $299, these sofa and chairs were the cheapest (sorry, the word is least expensive) suites we carry by this manufacturer and what a buy! Now we have reduced these living room suites to $199. When you buy either the rust or green (we have both) the manager bursts into tears, so be prepared... bring a Kleenex. Green or rust tweed. There's real built in quality in spite of the low price. Genuine foam rubber cushions, coil spring base make this Johnson-Carper living room a great buy.

KEEP UP WITH THE JONESES. Last week Mrs. Jones bought a Rowe Colonial Sofa and Chair in red tweed for $439. We have one just like it in red and greenish gray tweed for $300.

ON THE SALE OF THE LONESOME CHAIR. ALB's little chair friends who came to live with us six months ago are gone and this green tweed modern chair is still around. Its construction is good but he's getting an inferior complex because he's been passed up so often. We hate to tell him that maybe it's because he's bending backwards trying to keep up his morale which makes it very difficult to get out of this chair once you're in. At just $55 we'll throw in arm covers so you won't wear out the cover on the arms getting out of it. Actually this backward lean is the way he was designed and not his fault at all (in fact, there are many people who like a chair designed this way)... if you're one, better hurry and pick him up for just $55. Was $99.

WE HESITATE to sell Rowe furniture, but we do have several two piece living room suites in colonial styles that we're going to sell at very special prices during this sale. Now the reason for our reluctance to sell Rowe furniture to you at any price is that the quality is so superior, you may not have to return to the store for years and we do like to have you come in often. These two piece suites are in Rust, Olive Green and a rather strange deep Gold. Regular price on these suites is $359... we're sticking our necks out and selling the rust and olive green sofa and chairs for just $295. The gold one is only $269 (it's the same quality and design but our manager doesn't like gold, he prefers green stuff).

FOR THE RUSTY LOVER... A rust colored love seat. So elegantly styled, attractive and comfortable that anything can happen. The results reported from previous sales at $159 were so startling that we feel we must get them out of the store... We just cannot take the responsibility—so, if you promise not to hold us liable, you may buy this love seat for $109.

NOT ALL FOR DEGAULLE. We have two rich living room suites... one modern with walnut legs, the other colonial style... both in beautiful gold. We feel it our patriotic duty to lower the tariff from $309 for the modern suite to $230 and from $339 for the colonial to $270. In order to get this gold off the floor before Charles DeGaulle walks into the store to pick up this share of American gold.

CRIBUSCUS ARTAXIA. What is it? It's a tall yellow flowering shrub with green leaves in a little green pot. We hate the flower so we're giving it away... We like the little green pot so we're selling it at a reduced price of $9 but you'll have to take the cribuscus artaxia with it. This was $19.95.

TOED SFOOLS. Just another name for footstools which we are selling during the sale for just $10.88. They come in shades of rusts or we have them in shades of blues. Just $10.88. These same items sold for $22.95 when we called them ottomans.

SANTA GOT CAUGHT IN OUR CHIMNEY. So we had to tear it down and now we have no use for the one and only Fireplace Spark Guard in the store. A spark guard is a black screen trimmed with brass for use across a fireplace... so if you still have your fireplace and could use a spark guard, it's yours for $8.

GOT A CHIP ON YOUR SHOULDER? Let's hope it's the right size to fill in the chip that's been knocked off the corner of this triangular coffee table. Cause you can have this lovely table that sold for $34.95... as is for $5.00.

CONVERSATION PIECE. This particular Lane coffee table has caused a great deal of comment ever since it's been in the center, a black wrought have eight sides (that's an octagon, of course) but it has, right in the center, a black wrought iron brazier and the tools with which you can supposedly cook. Now we don't really recommend that you use it to cook since the table is lovely antique pine wood, but we do recommend that you buy this $169 table, while, you can, for just $120.

NO FRIEND LIKE AN OLD FRIEND. This antique ivory five foot credenza has been around so long that it's really become an old friend. We don't remember if it started out as antique ivory or if this happened over a long period of time, but our old friend would look lovely in a hall, dining room, living room or maybe a bedroom? If you promise to be good to this cabinet (or credenza as it prefers to be called) you may have it for just $75. Was $139.

ENOUGH ROPE TO HANG YOURSELF. We think some manufacturer must have had that much rope and then some and decided to make chairs of it. At any rate, he turned out some very clever rope folding chairs. So, if you're at the end of your rope for seating space, buy one of these chairs and the rope will be at the end of you. Sale priced at $19.88.

EXPECTING? WE ARE. We're expecting a real run on lovely white hassocks at the low price of only $11 (they were $16.95).

INTERNATIONALLY DESIGNED. This five piece dinette set appears to have been designed by the United Nations. The backs of the chairs look like the work of a Spaniard... the seats by a romantic Frenchman, the table by a staid Englishman and the result is almost impossible to describe. However, it takes a Scotsman to appreciate the price of $70 (considering that this walnut formica set with bronze tone seats on the chairs had been $139). That's for a table and four chairs.

SOFA BED. Here comes the old story of what is the difference between a studio couch, hide-a-bed, and a sofa bed... don't they all sleep two people? Wrong! A sofa bed, when lifted out and put flat, will really only sleep about 1 and 1/4 persons comfortably. But if you ever have 1 1/4 persons who need a sleeping space, this is it. We have them in blue and in green. They really do make a neat and attractive looking sofa anytime and they are only $99 (regularly $129.00).

TUR CHAIR. The last one of these we sold to a sweet little old lady was returned in horrible condition. Somehow our salesman didn't explain it correctly and she thought it was to sit in while in the tub. When used as intended... these red and green chairs prove most satisfactory and a good buy for the regular price of $99... But we'll have to come clean, at $68.50 they're a steal.

NITE STAND. All the rest of this bedroom suite has been sold. This solid walnut night stand at half price, $27, is guaranteed to stand all night.

PERSONAL MESSAGE. The other day someone called the store and asked if we had clothes racks. We extended our regrets and said no. Now, lo and behold, we've found one... just one. Whoever you are, wherever you are, we hope you read this and hurry in to get it... the price, only $5.

WANT FURNITURE? NOT READY FOR DELIVERY RIGHT NOW? CROSS OUR PALM WITH A LITTLE SILVER
And we will hold your choice for later delivery. No charge for layaways.

CONDITION CRITICAL. We have a white spindle bed (headboard and footboard) which is in terrible shape. Every joint on it is coming apart. However, with you as the doctor and a prescription of glue, it could be very serviceable and attractive. The price is just $1... or for $6 (total) you can have the bed rails included.

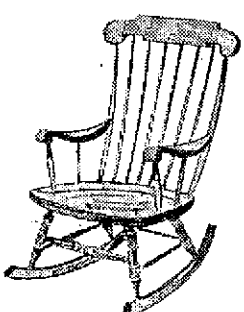

NO EXTRA CHARGE. We won't even charge extra for all the dust that has accumulated on this baby's stroller. We have just one and it's yours for $8 (with no extra charge for dust)... Was $14.00.

PORTED... All those artificial flowers that are in little white pots will be sold at the special price of 99c. Beauty is said to be in the eyes of the beholder but we've beheld these flowers long enough, now it's time for you to enjoy their beauty. Lovely on any table or dresser... guaranteed to brighten your day.

MAPLE FINISH

WE'RE A BUNCH OF RUG CUTTERS. As a result we have an assortment of high quality, tightly woven, long wearing rugs in sizes from twelve by twelve to seventeen. These are oversize remnants at underprice prices. Originally selling from $125 to $208... you can Pamper your Paws (and feet) at the Popular Prices of $80 to $134 during this sale. We've cut our rugs and pieces so you can cut our inventory and your cost.

FLOWER POWER. If you're worried about becoming a hippie, we have a yellow, orange and green flowered sofa which will fit yours very comfortably—it's 83" long. So for a good trip, come down to the store and take this Kruecher sofa to your pad. It's yours for just $170. Was originally $219.

GLASS... GLASS... GLASS. Alas, we're going to have to let many of our lovely pieces of glass, such as vases, dishes, etc. go. They're more than worth their present prices of anything from two to five dollars but some of us in the store are pretty clumsy and since it's getting near time to move everything around, we're afraid that it will get broken so we have all kinds of odds and ends of glass that we'll sacrifice for 50c rather than have them broken when we rearrange.

GLAMOUR FOR ANY GAL. What could be more glamorous than a Hollywood headboard of padded gold velvet? Priced during this sale at just $1. These single size headboards were $24.95.

MILITARY OFFICERS... ATTENTION! Gold braided shiny patent leather bar with two matching stools provides the ideal place for "old soldiers to fade away." Formica bar top and shelves will withstand many a campaign... Mirror in center of back bar allows you to check your military bearing at all times and the light above casts some interesting reflections. This set did sell for $229, a special now offered to you at $120 (ratons not included). This 4 piece set is sold as is since it received a few wounds in some military campaign.

SALEM BAR GROUP (NEVER USED BY PURITANS)... but great for serving your particular witches brew. Four piece bar group includes bar, back bar and two stools in maple with early american fabric trim on back bar and stools. This set did sell for $179 but the truth of the matter is the lamination on the back bar is de-laminating so the price as is during this sale is only $90. On the other hand, if you have a little patience, we can have the bar repaired for you and it will only cost you $90 for the four piece set.

SAD STORY OF AN INEFFICIENT COMPANY. We have on our floor a lovely Antique Pine Hutch from a company which will remain unnamed. This Hutch has two shelves (open), three drawers across the center and three compartments below. There is a front piece which folds up to give a "dry sink" effect. Now, doesn't that sound like just what any smart furniture buyer would stock in his store? That's what we thought... but then came the catch... the delivery from this company is lousy. So, if you have use for an antique pine hutch which did sell for $259 for just $180... it's yours (However, should you want any matching pieces, we want to warn you that you would probably be old and gray before they were shipped by this company).

SO NEW! IT'S STILL GREEN. This green colonial sofa and chair hasn't been on the floor long enough to ripen nor for us to find out how it's gonna sell... but the manager says "Cross out that $349 price (just for the sale, of course)... we're gonna give our customers a real bargain... at $257." Now, we sat on this set and checked it out and we're sure the manager hasn't found out how very comfortable it is or he'd never have made such a drastic statement... so hurry in before he gets a chance to check it out and the price goes back up.

WANT TO SEE A GROWN MAY CRY? At the original price of $299, these sofa and chairs were the cheapest (sorry, the word is least expensive) suites we carry by this manufacturer and what a buy! Now we have reduced these living room suites to $199. When you buy either the rust or green (we have both) the manager bursts into tears, so be prepared... bring a kleenex. Green or rust tweed. There's real built in quality in spite of the low price. Genuine foam rubber cushions, coil spring base make this Johnson-Carper living room a great buy.

KEEP UP WITH THE JONESES. Last week Mrs. Jones bought a Rowe Colonial Sofa and Chair in red tweed for $439. We have one just like it in red and greenish gray tweed for $300.

ON THE SALE OF THE LONESOME CHAIR. All it's little chair friends who came to live with us six months ago are gone and this green tweed modern chair is still around. His construction is good but he's getting an inferiority complex because he's been passed up so often. We hate to tell him that maybe it's because he's bending backwards trying to keep up his morale which makes it very difficult to get out of this chair once you're in. At just $55 we'll throw in arm covers so you won't wear out the cover on the arms getting out of it. Actually this backward lean is the way he was designed and not his fault at all (in fact, there are many people who like a chair designed this way)... if you're one, better hurry and pick him up for just $55. Was $99.

WE HESITATE to sell Rowe furniture, but we do have several two piece living room suites in colonial styles that we're going to sell at very special prices during this sale. Now the reason for our reluctance to sell Rowe furniture to you at any price is that the quality is so superior, you may not have to return to the store for years and we do like to have you come in often. These two piece suites are in Rust, Olive Green and a rather strange deep Gold. Regular price on these suites is $359... we're sticking our necks out and selling the rust and olive green sofa and chairs for just $295. The gold one is only $269 (it's the same quality and design but our manager doesn't like gold, he prefers green stuff).

FOR THE RUSTY LOVER... A rust colored love seat. So elegantly styled, attractive and comfortable that anything can happen. The results reported from previous sales at $159 were so startling that we feel we must get them out of the store... We just cannot take the responsibility—so, if you promise not to hold us liable, you may buy this love seat for $109.

NOT ALL FOR DEGAULLE. We have two rich living room suites... one modern with walnut legs, the other colonial style—both in beautiful gold. We feel it our patriotic duty to lower the tariff from $309 for the modern suite to $230 and from $339 for the colonial to $270, in order to get this gold off the floor before Charles DeGaulle walks into the store to pick up this share of American gold.

CRIBUSCUS ARTAXIA. What is it? It's a tall yellow flowering shrub with green leaves in a little green pot. We hate the flower so we're giving it away... We like the little green pot so we're selling it at a reduced price of $9 but you'll have to take the cribuscus artaxia with it. This was $19.95.

TOED STOOLS. Just another name for footstools which we are selling during the sale for just $10.88. They come in shades of rusts or we have them in shades of blues. Just $10.88. These same items sold for $22.95 when we called them ottomans.

SANTA GOT CAUGHT IN OUR CHIMNEY. So we had to tear it down and now we have no use for the one and only Fireplace Spark Guard in the store. A spark guard is a black screen trimmed with brass for use across a fireplace... so if you still have your fireplace and could use a spark guard, it's yours for $8.

GOT A CHIP ON YOUR SHOULDER? Let's hope it's the right size to fill in the chip that's been knocked off the corner of this triangular coffee table. Cause you can have this lovely table that sold for $34.95... as is for $5.00.

CONVERSATION PIECE. This particular Lane coffee table has caused a great deal of comment ever since it's been in the center, a black wrought have eight sides (that's an octagon, of course) but it has, right in the center, a black wrought iron brazier and the tools with which you can supposedly cook. Now we don't really recommend that you use it to cook since the table is lovely antique pine wood, but we do recommend that you buy this $169 table, while, you can, for just $120.

NO FRIEND LIKE AN OLD FRIEND. This antique ivory five foot credenza has been around so long that it's really become an old friend. We don't remember if it started out as antique ivory or if this happened over a long period of time, but our old friend would look lovely in a hall, dining room, living room or maybe a bedroom? If you promise to be good to this cabinet (or credenza as it prefers to be called) you may have it for just $75. Was $139.

ENOUGH ROPE TO HANG YOURSELF. We think some manufacturer must have had that much rope and then some and decided to make chairs of it. At any rate, he turned out some very clever rope folding chairs. So, if you're at the end of your rope for seating space, buy one of these chairs and the rope will be at the end of you. Sale priced at $19.88.

EXPECTING? WE ARE. We're expecting a real run on lovely white bassinets at the low price of only $11 (they were $16.95).

INTERNATIONALLY DESIGNED. This five piece dinette set appears to have been designed by the United Nations. The backs of the chairs look like the work of a Spaniard... the seats by a romantic Frenchman, the table by a staid Englishman and the result is almost impossible to describe. However, it takes a Scotsman to appreciate the price of $70 (considering that this walnut formica set with bronze tone seats on the chairs had been $139). That's for a table and four chairs.

SOFA BED. Here comes the old story of what is the difference between a studio couch, hide-a-bed, and a sofa bed... don't they all sleep two people? Wrong! A sofa bed, when lifted out and put flat, will really only sleep about 1 and 1/4 persons comfortably. But if you ever have 1 1/4 persons who need a sleeping space, this is it. We have them in blue and in green. They really do make a neat and attractive looking sofa anytime and they are only $99 (regularly $129.00).

TUB CHAIR. The last one of these we sold to a sweet little old lady was returned in horrible condition. Somehow our salesman didn't explain it correctly and she thought it was to sit in while in the tub. When used as intended... these red and green chairs prove most satisfactory and a good buy for the regular price of $99... But we'll have to come clean, at $66.50 they're a steal.

NITE STAND. All the rest of this bedroom suite has been sold. This solid walnut night stand at half price, $27, is guaranteed to stand all night.

PERSONAL MESSAGE. The other day someone called the store and asked if we had clothes racks. We extended our regrets and said no. Now, lo and behold, we've found one... just one. Whoever you are, wherever you are, we hope you read this and hurry in to get it... the price, only $5.

WANT FURNITURE? NOT READY FOR DELIVERY RIGHT NOW? CROSS OUR PALM WITH A LITTLE SILVER
And we will hold your choice for later delivery. No charge for layaways.

CONDITION - CRITICAL. We have a white spindle bed (headboard and footboard) which is in terrible shape. Every joint on it is coming apart. However, with you as the doctor and a prescription of glue, it could be very serviceable and attractive. The price is just $1... or for $6 (total) you can have the bed rails included.

NO EXTRA CHARGE. We won't even charge extra for all the dust that has accumulated on this baby's stroller. We have just one and it's yours for $8 (with no extra charge for dust)... Was $14.00.

POTTED... All those artificial flowers that are in little white pots will be sold at the special price of 69c. Beauty is said to be in the eyes of the beholder but we've beheld these flowers long enough, now it's time for you to enjoy their beauty. Lovely on any table or dresser... guaranteed to brighten your day.

WE'RE A BUNCH OF RUG CUTTERS. As a result we have an assortment of high quality, tightly woven, long wearing rugs in sizes from twelve by twelve to seventeen. These are oversize remnants at underside prices. Originally selling from $125 to $208... you can Pamper your Purse (and feet) at the Popular Prices of $60 to $134 during this sale. We've cut our rugs and prices so you can cut our inventory and your cost.

FLOWER POWER. If you're worried about becoming a Hippie, we have a yellow, orange and green flowered sofa which will fit yours very comfortably—it's 83" long. So for a good trip, come down to the store and take this Kruehler sofa to your pad. It's yours for just $170. Was originally $219.

GLASS... GLASS... GLASS. Alas, we're going to have to let many of our lovely pieces of glass, such as vases, dishes, etc. go. They're more than worth their present prices of anything from two to five dollars but some of us in the store are pretty clumsy and since it's getting near time to move everything around, we're afraid that it will get broken so we have all kinds of odds and ends of glass that we'll sacrifice for 50c rather than have them broken when we rearrange.

GLAMOUR FOR ANY GAL. What could be more glamorous than a Hollywood headboard of padded gold velvet? Priced during this sale at just $4. These single size headboards were $24.95.

Higher payments start in March

Local S S increases $697,000

STROUDSBURG — To what extent will the boost in social security payments, recently voted by Congress, benefit residents of Monroe County?

How much will retirement checks in the local area average under the new schedule?

On the basis of the latest figures from the Social Security Administration, which show the number of local recipients and the amount they were receiving at the beginning of 1967, the new total will be approximately $697,000 greater per year than before.

Across the board increases are provided for retired or disabled workers and their dependents. Those who have been getting minimum benefits of $328 per year will now receive $660.

For couples, there will be an increase in the minimum from the current $788 to $990.

At the upper end of the scale, for those whose monthly salaries averaged $550 or more during their late working years, the pension payment for an individual will rise from $2,015 to $2,279. For a retired couple, it will go from $3,924 to $4,419.

The size of the pension a retired worker receives is directly related to the amount he earned over a period of years prior to retirement and, in turn, to his contributions to the pension fund.

In Monroe County, according to the latest annual report of the Social Security Administration, payments to beneficiaries were at the average yearly rate of $904 per recipient.

Beginning in March, when the first checks reflecting the increase will arrive, the local average will be $1,022.

For the community as a whole, the pension payments will amount to $8,058,000 a year, as compared with the previous total of $5,362,000.

Hand in hand with the bigger benefits goes an increase in costs. Those who have been paying social security taxes on earnings below $6,000 will be continued at the same rate for another year.

Those earning between $6,000 and $7,800, however, will have to pay 4.4 per cent on the amount over $6,000. Their employers will have to contribute a matching amount.

8 hurt in Pike accident

MILFORD — Eight persons were injured in the aftermath of a two-car collision 12:45 p.m. Saturday at the intersection of Routes 209 and 739 in Dingmans Perry, according to State Police, Milford.

Five of the eight persons were admitted to St. Francis Hospital, Port Jervis and three were treated and released. Extent of injuries were not released, but indications are that they were apparently minor and the persons are in fair condition.

Remainder in the hospital are Frank Varela, 32, of Union City, N.J., his wife, Joan, 31, and two of their five children, Bernadette, 12 and Deborah, 7. The other children are Joan, 10, Frank, 13 and Gregory, 14.

Also admitted to the hospital was David Owen Edwards Jr., 6, of Star Route, Milford. State Police reported that Varela was driving his car east on Route 739, stopped the vehicle at a stop sign at the intersection of the two highways and then proceeded across Route 209.

The Varela car and the car driven by Edwards were in collision at the intersection. Troopers said the Edwards car had been approaching the intersection from the north and that Varela had not seen the car approaching.

Trooper Robert Schievert investigated.

1936 plane crash in Pike recalled

MILFORD — A near tragedy was averted more than 30 years ago when a Douglas DC-2 transport aircraft, with its eight passengers and three-member crew aboard, dipped low over the Borough of Milford in the midst of a storm and crashed in nearby woods.

Some of the older Pike County residents were reminded of the December 19, 1936 crash when a California man inquired for some details.

The man, J. W. Justin of Los Alamitos, Calif., is attempting to account for over 200 DC-2 airplanes produced and trace their final disposition. He intends to write a historical-technical book concerning the aircraft.

A December 21, 1936 issue of The Record reported the story of the crash, as did the Morning Sun, of which were both Stroudsburg newspapers, which were later merged to form the current Pocono Record.

None of the passengers or crew members had suffered any serious injuries.

News accounts reported that the then world-famous trans-Atlantic pilot Dick Merrill was making a non-stop flight from Miami, Fla., to the Newark Airport, when the plane's radio direction beam failed to function because of the storm. The plane became lost as a result.

"He (Merrill) dipped low over the Borough of Milford many miles off his course in an effort to get his location and then swung higher only to crash in the mountain fastness," the new story account read. "The point of the crash is only about three-fourths of a mile by direct line from the Milford-Port Jervis highway, but rescuers had to walk about three or four miles around to find the plane," the news report described.

Mayor at scene One of the first who reached the crash was Harold Marvin, an employee of the State Liquor Store in Milford. He was accompanied by Mayor Wendell Phillips of Port Jervis and Deputy Sheriff McConnell.

The three men were directed to the crash by Peter Bloomquist, publicity representative of Eastern Airlines, which owned the aircraft. Bloomquist had fought his way through the underbrush and storm to reach Matamoros for aid.

The plane had not been heavily damaged. The left wing was torn off and the front was slightly damaged.

Some of the passengers were taken to St. Francis Hospital, Port Jervis, N.Y., and were treated for cuts and bruises. They were later taken to Newark, N.J., by train.

As for the airplane, it was dismantled and swaths were cut through the woods to allow trucks to get in and remove the wreckage.

Ruggiero seeking re-election

BANGOR — Philip S. Ruggiero of Bangor, announced his candidacy for re-election to the House of Representatives from the 137th Legislative District.

"My past term as a legislator has required a great deal of fortitude in combating the unnecessary and unreasonable proposals of the present administration," said Ruggiero and added, "although we, as a minority party, have accomplished a great deal in breaking the rolling tide, there is still much to be achieved."

"I am also anxious to continue to help strengthen local governments. As representative of a district composed entirely of boroughs and townships, I have tried to vote in a manner that will preserve and promote local government, and protect it from encroachments by state government," said Ruggiero.

Elected from the 137th District in 1966, Ruggiero is also a member of Boroughs and Motor Vehicles and Highway Safety Committees.

A former Assistant District Attorney of Northampton County, and solicitor for Roseto Borough and Hanover Twp., Ruggiero was past president and an organizer of the Northampton County Young Democrats, first president and an organizer of the State Belt Young Democrats and Area 3 (now Area 7) chairman since September 1960 and a member of the Democratic Executive Committee of Northampton County.

He was also former member and first secretary of the Northampton County Planning Commission, former member of Executive Board of Delaware Valley Area Council, BSA and Northampton County Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

8 hurt in Pike accident

MILFORD — Eight persons were injured in the aftermath of a two-car collision 12:45 p.m. Saturday at the intersection of Routes 209 and 739 in Dingmans Ferry, according to State Police, Milford.

Five of the eight persons were admitted to St. Francis Hospital, Port Jervis and three were treated and released. Extent of injuries were not released, but indications are that they were apparently minor and the persons are in fair condition.

Remaining in the hospital are Frank Varela, 32, of Union City, N.J., his wife, Joan, 31, and two of their five children, Bernadette, 12 and Deborah, 7. The other children are Joan, 10, Frank, 13 and Gregory, 14.

Also admitted to the hospital was David Owen Edwards Jr., 6, of Star Route, Milford. State Police reported that Valera was driving his car east on Route 739, stopped the vehicle at a stop sign at the intersection of the two highways and then proceeded across Route 209.

The Valera car and the car driven by Edwards were in collision at the intersection. Troopers said the Edwards car had been approaching the intersection from the north and that Valera had not seen the car approaching.

Trooper Robert Schievert investigated.

CHIROPRACTIC FOR NEURITIS

BY DR. THOMAS F. SNYDER

There seem to be four main areas of neuritis in the body: the arm, leg, neck and ribs.

Neuritis refers to the nerve inflammation in the area; and most frequently the seeds of distress in neuritis, when the irritated nerve is traced, come from the spinal column, and in the overwhelming majority of cases, is due to displaced vertebrae that are irritating those nerves.

Go to your doctor of Chiropractic for neuritis. He is the specialist in locating spinal displacement, and corrections the displacement to remove the nerve pressure.

Science Shrinks Painful Hemorrhoids Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

Finds Way That Both Relieves Pain and Shrinks Piles In Most Cases

New York, N.Y. (Special): Science has found a special formula with the ability, in most cases, to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching and relieve pain.

In case after case doctors proved, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place. The secret is Preparation H. There is no other formula for hemorrhoids like it. Preparation H also soothes irritated tissues and helps prevent further infection. In ointment or suppository form,

Industry growth local compliment

It is easy to observe growth in our community these days but most of it is mandated by circumstances we don't control. Thus the expansion at Redmond Finishing Co. in East Stroudsburg is worth a double round of local applause.

The single area of greatest growth is dictated by national demand and powered by state subsidy at East Stroudsburg College. The other great area of general growth is in housing new families and for metropolitan families seeking a vacation site.

In the last couple of years there have been some new stores — the A&P and Big N are the biggest in Stroudsburg and Acme dominates the Courtland St. project in East Stroudsburg. We're glad to have them and believe their success justifies the confidence shown in the community by the store owners.

There is a good argument, however, that classes growing from existing industry as the best of all. This is the sort exemplified by the plans announced for Redmond and the work near completion at Hughes Printing.

In these days of bidding for industry and wide-ranging enticements conjured up by local committees on industrial expansion, it seems to us the greatest compliment a community can get is for industry it already has to expand its investment.

"We like it here," the expansion seems to say. "We have been successful and we believe in the future for ourselves and the community." Then to substantiate the testimony, cash goes on the line and the new project rises.

East Stroudsburg in particular and the surrounding community in general are not likely to get complacent over the attitudes of Redmond and Hughes but it is a comforting situation in an area that already takes pride in its sound employment status.

Over-sized legislature over-rides convention

Too many things in government have been allowed to grow to unwieldy status simply because there has been reluctance to step on a good man's toe.

The size of the state House of Representatives is an example. It has grown to 203 members, twice as large at least, as is necessary to supply representatives from each general district. Our initial disappointment with the Constitutional Convention is that its Legislative Committee has reported out a motion that favors retention of the House at its current membership.

The legislature is not going to initiate an amendment to reduce its size. The chance came when the public voted to hold this non-partisan convention to do everything it could legally accomplish to make the state more efficient.

Of course, there are legislators at the convention as delegates but in this case they are a minority, not a unanimous majority. It appears a minority, led by the rural conservatives, has provided enough pressure to sustain the status quo.

It has been said in this space that the day has arrived when one legislative body chosen on the mandated one-man, one-vote basis should be sufficient to govern our state. Such a plan has drawbacks, one of them being that it would radically change "the system".

So viewing that as a presently best cost, there was a hope that the convention would at least propose a more workable size to the traditional two houses. There's still hope but it's mighty, mighty slim.

The Allen-Scott Report

Soviet squeezes Cuban economy

WASHINGTON — The Kremlin rulers are making Fidel Castro pay through the nose for his grandstanding outbursts of fractious complaints and blustering gestures.

While continuing to provide grain, oil, machinery, manufactured and other goods, the Soviet is quietly cracking down by exacting higher prices for these vital supplies — without which terror-ruled Cuba would quickly sink into economic chaos and inevitable turmoil and violence.

That's the inside reason for Castro's latest stringent rationing edict — rigid control of oil consumption.

Moscow sharply upped its price for this essential commodity.

There were no threats or moves of any kind to curtail oil shipments. Castro can continue to order all he wants from his fellow Communists — if he can pay their increased price.

That's the agonizing rub, he can't. Reason is that all trade between Cuba and the Soviet bloc is on a barter basis — with the latter fixing prices.

Cuba is primarily a single-crop exporter — sugar accounts for approximately 85 per cent of its foreign sales. The remainder consists of 5 per cent tobacco, 5 per cent minerals and metals, 2 per cent fruits and vegetables, 3 per cent miscellaneous.

Under barter agreements, Russia and other Communist countries take more than two-thirds of Cuba's sugar.

In 1966, the last year for which figures are available, the International Sugar Council reported Cuba shipped only 27 per cent of its 4.4 million tons of sugar exports to non-Communist countries. All the rest went to the Iron Curtain and to Red China — which got 500,000 tons.

MORE HEADLINES — Senator Robert Kennedy with the active collaboration of Senator Joseph Clark, D-Pa., who is up for re-election this year, is setting the stage for a new series of headline-making hearings in the South.

Attack on drugs

WASHINGTON — Some family standbys for common ailments are about to follow into oblivion the old specific of sulphur and molasses. The Food and Drug Administration, after a long study of some 3,000 prescription and proprietary medicines, may take some 10 per cent of them off the shelves.

The total number of drug store items affected by the FDA reports in the next year and a half might be much more, inasmuch as many drugs are sold under several names. The reports will cover drugs that came onto the market between 1938 and 1962. The DeFauver-Harris Drug Amendments of 1962 require manufacturers to demonstrate that a drug is not only safe but "effective." That means that many favorites of families — and physicians — which were virtually placebos will be barred from sale.

Much litigation is likely to spring from the outlawing of drugs that the FDA disapproves. Dr. James L. Goddard, commissioner of the FDA, on Dec. 30 suggested that "a number of physicians will be upset," adding that "knowing my brother physicians as I do, I know there are going to be a number of complaints."

The FDA study was conducted by the National Academy of Sciences. This has been called the counterpart in the scientific community of "the Established Church, the House of Lords, the Supreme Court, and headquarters of the politics of science." The man who made that judgment conceded at the same time: "In regard to drug safety, pesticide hazards, arms control, drug hazards, and a score of other issues involving the wise use of science and technology,

The two senators plan to investigate the Arizona, Arkansas, Georgia, Kentucky and South Carolina.

Last year they conducted a similar probe in Mississippi. They are engaging in these operations as members of a Senate Labor subcommittee, of which Clark is chairman.

The Kennedy-Clark "malnutrition" hunting venture into Arkansas is certain to be followed with keen interest by their Senate colleagues.

Arkansas is the home state of Senator J. William Fulbright, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee and a leading critic of the Vietnam war. Like Clark, he is up for election this year and decidedly on the defensive over his Vietnam stand, on which Bobby Kennedy and Clark largely agree with him.

How testy Fulbright will react to having two fellow Democratic doves prowling his state in search of "malnutrition" headlines should prove interesting.

PREDICTIONS — The U. S. will send another ambassador to Paris to replace Charles Bohlen, who has been named Deputy Undersecretary of State for Political Affairs. The De Gaulle government has been given assurances of that. Labor leaders are gloomy over the prospects of getting any favorable legislation out of Congress this year. A careful canvass of the outlook disclosed virtually no hope for any important labor measures being enacted. Hearings will be held in the House on a bill giving collective bargaining rights to farm workers, but that's as far as it will get.

The Mexican government will soon recognize the Franco regime in Spain, Mexico is the only non-Communist country that has refused to establish diplomatic relations with Madrid, but it will do so by spring. Bill Moyers, one-time White House press secretary, will go to Vietnam and the Middle East to write a series of articles for the Long Island Paper of which he is now editor. Since leaving the White House, Moyers has become increasingly dovish.

Public view of Congress at low point under LBJ

BY LOUIS HARRIS

Public confidence in Congress has reached its lowest ebb in five years, with the American people giving the recently reconvened 90th Congress a 41 to 59 per cent negative job rating. In fact, President Johnson, a positive rating of 43 per cent now is more favorably received by the public than is Congress.

Specific criticisms of the session just passed are directed at failure to pass a gun control bill, cutting back aid to cities, not passing an open housing law and cutting funds for the poverty program. The House and Senate are credited for refusing to pass the income tax increase requested by the President, for increasing Social Security benefits, for extension of the draft and for cutting back funds for foreign aid.

Basically, the public's unhappiness with Congress stems from a feeling that in a time of crisis in Vietnam, racial turmoil at home and a rising cost of living, Congress has bogged down in cantankerous debate over peripheral issues and has not come up with a legislative program to meet urgent problems.

Here is the trend of confidence in Congress as measured in the last part of 1967, compared with similar readings over the past five years. A cross section of 1,602 households selected on a careful probability basis across the country was asked:

"How would you rate the job this session of Congress (90th Congress) has done — excellent, pretty good, only fair or poor?"

	POSITIVE PER CENT	NEGATIVE PER CENT
1967	41	59
1966	54	46
1965	71	29
1964	64	36
1963	35	65

NOTE: Those with no opinion this year, 21 per cent, have been eliminated from this table in order to compare trends with other years.

Day of reckoning

There was a little inn on the right side of the road. It was half home, half public building. The road was gabled and the snow clung like thick stiff cream. The lady was hospitable. She had a room. It wasn't much, no television or radio, but I could have it for five dollars.

Dinner would be prompt at six. I looked at the oak logs burning in the fireplace, and the dark bird was still on the top side. Three of them made popping noises and sent fireflies up the black sooty chimney into the cold pale sky.

She was stout and wore rimless spectacles and she asked me if I knew Damariscotta and I said no. The room was small and neat with a hardwood bed, two end tables and a chair. The bed had fluffy blankets across the bottom. The closet had seven wire hangers. There was a hook rug of gray between the door and the bed.

I tightened the red muffler and went for a walk. The road was clear except for a rim of snow. But it was walled on both sides with five feet, like a marble quarry, and it flattened out on top in a blinding whiteness that climbed across the hills toward the black-veined trees.

It was downhill to the river and I approached it eagerly. The lobster boats were high on cradles, looking bigger than they do in the water. The keelsons were frayed from small encounters with old rocks, and a man stood alone on a fragile dock of gray planks.

I walked up behind him, looking upriver and watching the black water flow broad and smooth and irresistible, coming down from the sheer hills around Jefferson, swelling a little around unseen rocks on its way to the sea. He wore a sweater and a blue mackinaw and a white hat with side panels for his ears, and sun glasses.

He heard the feel on the planks and he turned slowly. "Thanks for coming," he said. There was no gratitude in it. Reproach, maybe. My hands were aching. Downriver the sun looked warm, but it had nothing to offer. The hills on the far side were so clean that the snow spun off in diamond cyclones. A dump truck crept down the thin scar of road, the chains in tinny synchopation, searing the small birds from an old mound of shellfish.

Chest development

What can be done for a child's chest that has a large indentation in it?

The front part of the chest wall is called the sternum. Deformities of this bone are not unusual. Sometimes the chest bulges out with prominence and is called a pigeon breast.

In rare cases there may even be a total absence of the sternum. These and a funnel chest are all developmental abnormalities.

A deep funnel may be responsible for adding pressure on the lungs and even on the heart, so that both of these vital organs may be displaced from their normal position. The result is that shortness of breath and difficulty in breathing may occur.

Even slight exertion may cause fatigue if the funnel-shaped breastbone puts pressure on the lungs.

This condition technically is known as pectus excavatum and now is being repaired more and more frequently, both for the physical and psychological reasons. Even when the funnel chest causes no symptoms it may cause rather severe embarrassment in young, growing children.

There are now excellent safe operations which can re-establish the shape of the chest, both for pigeon chest and for funnel chest. The opinion of a general or chest surgeon should be sought early to spare the patient long sustained physical or emotional distress.

What can be done for a painful cyst at the base of the spine? It seems to come and

The drop in esteem for Congress since the Flood of Great Society legislation in 1964 and 1965 has been precipitous. Since the high water mark of 1963, a decline of 30 percentage points has taken place. In all fairness, similar fall-offs in the ratings of all branches of the federal government have occurred during this same period.

Significantly, people who voted for Barry Goldwater for President in 1964 are far more critical of Congress (2 to 1 negative) than those who voted for President Johnson (31-49 favorable). This would indicate that the criticism of Congress is likely to work more against Johnson than his Republican opponent in this year's presidential election.

Among key groups in the electorate, independent voters, the better educated and younger people are most critical. Negroes and enrolled Democrats tend most to defend the record of Congress.

To obtain specific assessments of legislative action by the 90th Congress, the cross section was asked:

"Specifically, how would you rate the job Congress has done on (read list) — excellent, pretty good, only fair or poor?"

	Positive	Neg.	Not Sure
Increasing Social Security....	55	30	15
Refusing a tax increase....	54	26	20
Cutting back foreign aid bill....	43	34	23
Passing extension of draft....	41	25	34
Cutting anti-poverty program...	34	45	21
Not passing open housing law...	33	38	29
Cutting back aid to the cities...	29	41	30
Not passing gun control law....	28	48	24

The four major areas of criticism of Congress all deal with problems of the cities, ghettos and law and order on the streets. Other recent Harris Surveys have indicated that the public was ahead of its leaders in demanding drastic measures to head off riots next summer and to curb crime in the cities.

"Well?" he said. I felt bad. I knew what I had to tell him, but he didn't. I asked him why he wrote to me, and he stared hard through the sunglasses and said: "You know damn well why. Because I trust you. I wrote that in the first letter."

There had been seven. Each more trusting. I told him I had been in and out of the big city, and the prosecutor said no. "No deal," I said. The man was irritated. "What does he mean, no deal? I'm willing to give myself up." You wrote to a stranger — Me. I forwarded your offer to the authorities. They said nothing doing.

The truck passed and the Maine hillside lapsed into silence. The cold made the bones in my toes ache. I told him I was sorry. He was sore now, and he said sorry hell, they'll never find me. I took in a long, long breath and could not look him in the eye. "They're with me," I said.

For a second, the man panicked. Then he saw a man standing at the edge of the bridge, and another behind us on top of a hill. He didn't call me what I was. His mittened hand slapped the side of his corduroy pants again and again, and the lips contorted. Behind the square sunglasses, he was crying.

"The woman died," I said. He nodded. He knew. "She died," I said. "She said it was her fault for asking you to do it." She had been aware of the danger. He had taken the money and in two days she was dead. He took the sunglasses off and wiped his eyes and had trouble getting a kerchief from his hip pocket. "I know you didn't mean to kill her," I said. He put the glasses back on, a small, shrunken person standing in the cold stripped of his dignity.

"Let's go back," I said, an he walked with me, head down, watching his overalls crush the window-pane ice on the shore.

It was a beautiful day. The sky was an empty vault in a big cathedral. There was a plume of blue smoke coming from the inn and the stiff wind twisted it like a maypole ribbon. My ribs hungered for the embrace of those logs. My spirits were down.

He had led to me only once. "Believe me," he said. "I tried hard to be a good doctor..."

"Well," said the owner, "when the customer refuses to eat his food, we don't rub his nose in it!"

The story making the rounds is about LBJ delivering his recent talk at Cam Ranh Bay in South Vietnam.

Two soldiers, on the far edge of the audience, listened in respectful silence.

Finally, one nudged the other and said, "Who is that?"

"President Johnson," his buddy answered.

"Thank goodness," the first one said. "I thought Bob Hope was slipping."

A true professional is one who is skeptical about his profession.

The Allen-Scott Report

Soviet squeezes
Cuban economy

WASHINGTON — The Kremlin rulers are making Fidel Castro pay through the nose for his grandstanding outbursts of fractious complaints and blustering gestures.

While continuing to provide grain, oil, machinery, manufactured and other goods, the Soviet is quietly cracking down by exacting higher prices for these vital supplies — without which terror-ruled Cuba would quickly sink into economic chaos and inevitable turmoil and violence.

That's the inside reason for Castro's latest stringent rationing edict — rigid control of oil consumption.

Moscow sharply upped its price for this essential commodity.

There were no threats or moves of any kind to curtail oil shipments. Castro can continue to order all he wants from his fellow Communists — if he can pay their increased price.

That's the agonizing rub, he can't.

Reason is that all trade between Cuba and the Soviet bloc is on a barter basis — with the latter fixing prices.

Cuba is primarily a single-crop exporter — sugar accounts for approximately 85 per cent of its foreign sales. The remainder consists of 5 per cent tobacco, 5 per cent minerals and metals, 2 per cent fruits and vegetables, 3 per cent miscellaneous.

Under barter agreements, Russia and other Communist countries take more than two-thirds of Cuba's sugar.

In 1966, the last year for which figures are available, the International Sugar Council reported Cuba shipped only 27 per cent of its 4.4 million tons of sugar exports to non-Communist countries. All the rest went to the Iron Curtain and to Red China — which got 500,000 tons.

MORE HEADLINES — Senator Robert Kennedy with the active collaboration of Senator Joseph Clark, D-Pa., who is up for re-election this year, is setting the stage for a new series of headline-making hearings in the South.

The two senators plan to investigate the Arizona, Arkansas, Georgia, Kentucky and South Carolina.

Last year they conducted a similar probe in Mississippi. They are engaging in these operations as members of a Senate Labor subcommittee, of which Clark is chairman.

The Kennedy-Clark "malnutrition" hunting venture into Arkansas is certain to be followed with keen interest by their Senate colleagues.

Arkansas is the home state of Senator J. William Fulbright, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee and a leading critic of the Vietnam war. Like Clark, he is up for election this year and decidedly on the defensive over his Vietnam stand, on which Bobby Kennedy and Clark largely agree with him.

How testy Fulbright will react to having two fellow Democratic doves prowling his state in search of "malnutrition" headlines should prove interesting.

PREDICTIONS — The U. S. will send another ambassador to Paris to replace Charles Bohlen, who has been named Deputy Undersecretary of State for Political Affairs. The De Gaulle government has been given assurances of that . . . Labor leaders are gloomy over the prospects of getting any favorable legislation out of Congress this year. A careful canvass of the outlook disclosed virtually no hope for any important labor measures being enacted. Hearings will be held in the House on a bill giving collective bargaining rights to farm workers, but that's as far as it will get . . . The Mexican government will soon recognize the Franco regime in Spain, Mexico is the only non-Communist country that has refused to establish diplomatic relations with Madrid, but it will do so by spring . . . Bill Moyers, one-time White House press secretary, will go to Vietnam and the Middle East to write a series of articles for the Long Island Paper of which he is now editor. Since leaving the White House, Moyers has become increasingly dovish.

Attack on drugs

WASHINGTON — Some family standbys for common ailments are about to follow into oblivion the old specific of sulphur and molasses. The Food and Drug Administration, after a long study of some 3,000 prescription and proprietary medicines, may take some 10 per cent of them off the shelves.

The total number of drug store items affected by the FDA reports in the next year and a half might be much more, inasmuch as many drugs are sold under several names. The reports will cover drugs that came onto the market between 1938 and 1962. The DeFauver-Harris Drug Amendments of 1962 require manufacturers to demonstrate that a drug is not only safe but "effective." That means that many favorites of families — and physicians — which were virtually placebos will be barred from sale.

Much litigation is likely to spring from the outlawing of drugs that the FDA disapproves. Dr. James L. Goddard, commissioner of the FDA, on Dec. 30 suggested that "a number of physicians will be upset," adding that "knowing my brother physicians as I do, I know there are going to be a number of complaints."

The FDA study was conducted by the National Academy of Sciences. This has been called the counterpart in the scientific community of "The Established Church, the House of Lords, the Supreme Court, and headquarters of the politics of science." The man who made that judgment concedes at the same time: "In regard to drug safety, pesticide hazards, arms control, drug hazards, and a score of other issues involving the wise use of science and technology, the Academy has not demonstrated any great foresight prior to outbursts of public concern." The NAS reports relayed through FDA will be something of an innovation all way round.

The FDA report on ineffective drugs comes at a time when the pharmaceutical industry is in a state of apology, or at least self-justification. Three major manufacturers were found guilty on Dec. 29 of conspiring to control the production and distribution of $1.7 billion worth of antibiotics. FDA only recently cautioned doctors against use of sulfonamide drugs to prevent rheumatic fever.

Drug prices are under attack by Sen. Russell Long (D La.) and Sen. Gaylord Nelson (D Wis.). Government data show that American Cyanamid has sold for $30.60 a quantity of tetracycline with a production cost of as low as $1.52. In 1955 American Cyanamid's pre-tax profit on a $50 million investment in antibiotics was $25.5 million, or 70.9 per cent.

The industry defends its practices. C. Joseph Stetler, president of the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association, on Nov. 16 told the Senate Select Small Business Committee: "The developing and marketing of new drug products is an uncertain enterprise at best. The percentage of the sales dollar which the research oriented drug companies spend to discover and develop new products is by far the highest of any American industry. Only one of about 6,000 compounds tested by drug companies turns out to be a marketable product, and even then it can reach the market only after years of animal and clinical testing."

Public view of Congress
at low point under LBJ

BY LOUIS HARRIS

Public confidence in Congress has reached its lowest ebb in five years, with the American people giving the recently reconvened 90th Congress a 41 to 59 per cent negative job rating. In fact, President Johnson, a positive rating of 43 per cent now is more favorably received by the public than is Congress.

Specific criticisms of the session just passed are directed at failure to pass a gun control bill, cutting back aid to cities, not passing an open housing law and cutting funds for the poverty program. The House and Senate are credited for refusing to pass the income tax increase requested by the President, for increasing Social Security benefits, for extension of the draft and for cutting back funds for foreign aid.

Basically, the public's unhappiness with Congress stems from a feeling that in a time of crisis in Vietnam, racial turmoil at home and a rising cost of living, Congress has bogged down in cantankerous debate over peripheral issues and has not come up with a legislative program to meet urgent problems.

Here is the trend of confidence in Congress as measured in the last part of 1967, compared with similar readings over the past five years. A cross section of 1,602 households selected on a careful probability basis across the country was asked:

"How would you rate the job this session of Congress (90th Congress) has done — excellent, pretty good, only fair or poor?"

1967	41	59
1966	54	46
1965	71	29
1964	64	36
1963	35	65

NOTE: Those with no opinion this year, 21 per cent, have been eliminated from this table in order to compare trends with other years.

Day of reckoning

There was a little inn on the right side of the road. It was half home, half public building. The roof was gabled and the snow clung like thick stiff cream. The lady was hospitable. She had a room. It wasn't much, no television or radio, but I could have it for five dollars.

Dinner would be prompt at six. I looked at the oak logs burning in the fireplace, and the dark bard was still on the top side. Three of them made popping noises and sent fireflies up the black sooty chimney into the cold pale sky.

She was stout and wore rimless spectacles and she asked me if I knew Damariscotta and I said no. The room was small and neat with a hardwood bed, two end tables and a chair. The bed had fluffy blankets across the bottom. The closet had seven wire hangers. There was a hook rug of gray between the door and the bed.

I tightened the red muffler and went for a walk. The road was clear except for a rind of snow. But it was walked on both sides with five feet, like a marble quarry, and it flattened out on top in a blinding whiteness that climbed across the hills toward the black-veined trees.

It was downhill to the river and I approached it eagerly. The lobster boats were high on cradles, looking bigger than they do in the water. The keelsons were frayed from small encounters with old rocks, and a man stood alone on a fragile dock of gray planks.

I walked up behind him, looking upriver and watching the black water flow broad and smooth and irresistible, coming down from the sheer hills around Jefferson, swelling a little around unseen rocks on its way to the sea. He wore a sweater and a blue mackinaw and a white hat with side panels for his ears, and sun glasses.

He heard the feet on the planks and he turned slowly. "Thanks for coming," he said. There was no gratitude in it. Reproach, maybe. My hands were aching. Downriver the sun looked warm, but it had nothing to offer. The hills on the far side were so clean that the snow spun off in diamond cyclones. A dump truck crept down the thin scar of road, the chains in tinny syncopation, scaring the small birds from an old mound of shellfish.

"Well?" he said. I felt bad. I knew what I had to tell him, but he didn't. I asked him why he wrote to me, and he stared hard through the sunglasses and said: "You know damn well why. Because I trust you. I wrote that in the first letter."

There had been seven. Each more trusting. I told him I had been in and out of the big city, and the prosecutor said no. "No deal," I said. The man was irritated. "What does he mean, no deal? I'm willing to give myself up." You wrote to a stranger — Me. I forwarded your offer to the authorities. They said nothing doing.

The truck passed and the Maine hillsides lapsed into silence. The cold made the bones in my toes ache. I told him I was sorry. He was sore now, and he said sorry hell, they'll never find me. I took in a long, long breath and could not look him in the eye. "They're with me," I said.

For a second, the man panicked. Then he saw a man standing at the edge of the bridge, and another behind us on top of a hill. He didn't call me what I was. His mittened hand slapped the side of his corduroy pants again and again, and the lips contorted. Behind the square sunglasses, he was crying.

"The woman died," I said. He nodded. He knew. "She died," I said. "She said it was her fault for asking you to do it." She had been aware of the danger. He had taken the money and in two days she was dead. He took the sunglasses off and wiped his eyes and had trouble getting a kerchief from his hip pocket. "I know you didn't mean to kill her," I said. He put the glasses back on, a small, shrunken person standing in the cold stripped of his dignity.

"Let's go back," I said, and he walked with me, head down, watching his overshoes crush the wind-pane ice on the shore.

It was a beautiful day. The sky was an empty vault in a big cathedral. There was a plume of blue smoke coming from the inn and the stiff wind twisted it like a maypole ribbon. My ribs hungered for the embrace of those logs. My spirits were down.

He had lied to me only once. "Believe me," he said. "I tried hard to be a good doctor."...

Chest development

What can be done for a child's chest that has a large indentation in it?

The front part of the chest wall is called the sternum. Deformities of this bone are not unusual. Sometimes the chest bulges out with prominence and is called a pigeon breast.

In rare cases there may even be a total absence of the sternum. These and a funnel chest are all developmental abnormalities.

A deep funnel may be responsible for adding pressure on the lungs and even on the heart, so that both of these vital organs may be displaced from their normal position. The result is that shortness of breath and difficulty in breathing may occur.

Even slight exertion may cause fatigue if the funnel-shaped breastbone puts pressure on the lungs.

This condition technically is known as pectus excavatum and now is being repaired more and more frequently, both for the physical and psychological reasons. Even when the funnel chest causes no symptoms it may cause rather severe embarrassment in young, growing children.

There are now excellent safe operations which can re-establish the shape of the chest, both for pigeon chest and for funnel chest. The opinion of a general or chest surgeon should be sought early to spare the patient long sustained physical or emotional distress.

What can be done for a painful cyst at the base of the spine? It seems to come and go without any special reason.

By the description this may well be a pilonidal cyst, a rather frequent condition that is due to a birth disorder.

Rarely do these cysts cause trouble until young adulthood. At that time, either by activity, injury or infection, the cysts become infected and painful. The location is always at the base of the spine, just above the crease between the buttocks.

It is unfortunate that pilonidal cysts are rarely brought to the attention of the doctor or the surgeon before they become infected. Surgery would be far easier and the recovery more rapid if the operation were performed before rather than after an abscess is formed.

When once there is an accumulation of pus the doctor has no choice but to open it and relieve the pain.

My own experience has been that once the pain has been controlled patients again forget about the existence of the cyst and do nothing about it until another abscess forms.

Surgery was once a very complicated procedure and healing took many weeks. Today when the operation is performed the wound is completely closed after the entire cyst is completely removed. Unless every bit of the cyst is removed there may be a recurrence of the condition.

The operation is safe and should not be delayed while medicines, ointments and salves are being tried, almost always without benefit.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

One advantage in working in an all-male office is that I have a built-in poll of what men think of women's fashions. Not that they notice what I'm wearing any time except it's a very bright color, or 2) the rare occasions when I wear both hat and gloves at work between meetings.

However, if pressed for an opinion, they will notice and react, so when I dragged out an old — well, since the first oldest things I have date from 1963 but that's old as far as fashions go — two piece knit which by tugging, I could get to reach mid-calf length, I could conduct my own survey.

and I'll warn you that it's going to take the men longer to adjust to longer skirts, if and when they appear next winter, than the women. Only one, and that one comparatively young, thought longer skirts better.

Our very youngest, but older in fashion ways, admitted that it would take several seasons to adjust the masculine eye to a new longer length. The vast majority are moderates. They approve of skirts at the knee — no shorter, no longer.

Which is probably where their wives wear theirs. The survey was, by design, a rapid one since I didn't want to give them a chance to realize that if the mid-length skirts come in they're going to be faced with buying their wives a whole new wardrobe. That would have influenced their opinion probably more than any other factor.

However, in the process of the experiment I did discover one salient fact. In this weather a mid-length skirt is incomparably warmer, girls. But it does give you the feeling that something's slipping.

College choir directed by founder

East Stroudsburg — Prof. Parker B. Wagnild, chairman of the Music Department at Gettysburg College will conduct the 60 voice Gettysburg College Choir in a sacred music concert on Wednesday, Jan. 31, at 7:30 p. m. in the Church, East Stroudsburg.

Wagnild formed the choral group shortly after he was appointed to the faculty in 1935 and since then it has become recognized throughout the world.

Born in Jackson, Minn., the son of a Lutheran minister, he moved with his parents to Saskatchewan, Canada, where he toured the province with instrumental and choral groups from Outlook Academy. He entered St. Olaf College in Northfield, Minn., where he sang with the world-famous St. Olaf choir, directed by F. Melius Christiansen. Christiansen composed "Psalm 50" to be sung by the choir in its local concert.

Wagnild earned a Master of Sacred Music degree from Union Theological Seminary, a bachelor of divinity degree at Gettysburg Theological Seminary and a Master of Arts degree at New York University.

MORA plans to take part in program

STROUDSBURG — MORA Club has "joined hands" with a project for membership increase, as introduced by general chairman of the Monroe County YMCA, Pierce Harley. Harley outlined a "stimulus" for both YMCA and MORA growth at a recent meeting. MORA's committee on the drive is headed by V. R. Fitzgerald.

Werner Sperling, also guest speaker, further entertained the members with some of his experiences and the influence of his grandfather who was an ardent musician and artist.

The meeting was directed by president Bernard Yardley. Singing was led by Al Sommer. The birthday of Rev. B. H. Hostetter was celebrated. Cards were sent to I. R. Hill, a General Hospital of Monroe County patient. Arthur Troegner read a letter from MORA foster child in Korea.

Thumb sucking on way out but not underlying causes

BY EVELYN IVEY
St. Petersburg Times
St. Petersburg, Fla. (AP) — Children's thumb sucking, which has been a source of irritation for parents through the ages, gradually is losing its popularity with the young set.

It is being replaced by symptoms—such actions as underachieving at school, stealing or refusing to help and share responsibilities at home.

In other words, today's youngster is more apt to express his emotional conflicts in behavior patterns rather than through physical or organic manifestations.

These are the observations of both Dr. Walter White and Dr. Jerome Rosenblum. Dr. White is director and Dr. Rosenblum is chief clinical psychologist at the Pinellas County Child Guidance Clinic, where 229 emotionally disturbed children are currently undergoing treatment.

One reason for this change in behavior patterns, suggest Dr. White, could be the switch our society has been undergoing toward more mobility coupled with an accelerated pace of living.

Children today, both doctors say, are exposed to more violence—on television, in the movies and in the news.

Psychiatrists and clinical psychologists are looking more and more into a child's total environment for answers to his emotional problems.

How can the child headed for emotional problems be recognized?

Usually he will display several immature symptoms or a "cluster" of anti-social characteristics.

For instance, explain both men, a child that persistently and frequently displays anti-social characteristics is building a pattern that will lead to serious problems.

Temper tantrums are normal in a small child but not in a teenager or adult. When this problem is displayed along with a "cluster" of other undesirable habits (bedwetting, thumb sucking, stealing, etc.) then the youngster is heading for emotional troubles. Both doctors point out, however, that the "cluster" of anti-social characteristics must appear with persistence and frequency to be significant signals of a mental breakdown.

Most emotional problems are created by the entire family. There are some, however, with strictly physiological roots.

Dr. White estimates about 10 per cent of the youngsters now undergoing treatment at the guidance center have emotional problems attributable strictly to physical defects. For instance the child with an eye defect or hearing impairment often times goes undetected unless specialized tests are administered.

Allergies, too, Dr. White points out, "are not 10 per cent emotional." There is some underlying physical reason, he says, for hives, asthma, hay fever, and eczema.

A physical defect just as a feeling of defeat or inadequacy ("Everyone," Dr. White contends, "must have a certain amount of success—it is necessary for a person's children are no exception.") can perpetuate a pattern of unworthiness or defeat.

Lacking a feeling of worth or self respect, a child becomes frustrated and the emotional pattern unravels, often times developing in to the "cluster" of anti-social characteristics. He thinks to himself as inadequate so he acts out his inadequacy by underachieving which leads to frustrations and being treated by his peers as an inadequate person—the vicious circle forms and the pattern eventually emotionally cripples him.

Husbands could have told: women's clothes cost more

By NEIL GILBRIDE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department has made official what most husbands already know—it costs a lot more to keep women well dressed than men.

And, says a report in the Monthly Labor Review, the higher cost of clothing the ladies persists from ages 2 to 72.

The greatest spending differences are at the ages of 16 and 17, when the average girl's wardrobe costs 42 per cent more than a boy's.

The report by Ann Erickson of the department's Division of Living Conditions Studies added Tuesday that both sexes become more clothes conscious in their mid and late teens.

"Although 18 to 24-year-olds had the highest clothing bills, their average expenditures were only slightly higher than the 16 and 17-year-olds," said the report.

"Persons in both age groups tend to be fashion conscious, like to have special clothes for dates and school activities, and often have more money to spend on clothing than younger teenagers—they are more likely to have income from part-time or full-time jobs," it said.

The report, based on a survey of buying habits over several years, said the average family spends $176.73 a year on clothing for men between the ages of 18 and 64 and $219.25 on women of the same ages. But those figures should be upped 10 per cent or more because of price hikes the past few years, the report said.

"For men, the lowest clothing purchases were reported for husbands whose children were all under 18," it said.

For youngsters from age 2 to 5, $73.98 a year was spent on girls and $67.49 on boys.

But the disparity, although narrowing, continues all the way into the 65-plus age group where clothing expenditures for both men and women decline but women still outspend men by an average $98.73 to $77.16 a year.

Quilting moves into warm house

South Sterling: Until "further notice," the South Sterling Woman's Society of Christian Service will quilt at the home of Mrs. Edna Smith, South Sterling, instead of at the WSCS Hall, it was announced during the recent Annual Dinner of the unit.

The WSCS quilts each Wednesday all year 'round, usually at the hall. But for the winter months, activity will be at Mrs. Smith's home on Route 191.

The Annual Dinner, usually a turkey dinner at the WSCS Hall, was also moved this year, and the membership — 27 in all — attended a "delightful experience." The dinner was held at the Country Hearth Restaurant at Blueberry Hill, and three honorary members were among the guests: Mrs. Jennie Haag, Mrs. Lillian Aders, and Mrs. Lena Roof.

Mrs. Roof gave the invocation. After the dinner, a brief business meeting was opened with a prayer by the president, Mrs. Alice Skelton.

A "Busy and fruitful" year — 1967 — was reported by Mrs. Lydia Fry, who serves the unit as treasurer. Her report of the year's financial activity was heard by the group.

Mrs. Edna Smith, chairman of the shut-in committee, reported that 19 baskets were packed and delivered.

Mrs. Skelton, thanking all of those who had helped make the past year successful, announced that there will be no evening business meetings in January, and that it would be decided "around the quilt" whether or not to meet in February.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

One advantage in working in an all-male office is that I have a built-in poll of what men think of women's fashions. Not that they notice what I'm wearing any time except it's a very bright color, or 2) the rare occasions when I wear both hat and gloves at work between meetings.

However, if pressed for an opinion, they will notice and react, so when I dragged out an old — well, since the fire the oldest things I have date from 1963 but that's old as far as fashions go — two piece knit which by tugging, I could get to reach mid-calf length, I could conduct my own survey.

and I'll warn you that it's going to take the men longer to adjust to longer skirts, if and when they appear next winter, than the women. Only one, and that one comparatively young, thought longer skirts better.

Our very youngest, but older in fashion ways, admitted that it would take several seasons to adjust the masculine eye to a new longer length. The vast majority are moderates. They approve of skirts at the knee — no shorter, no longer.

Which is probably where their wives wear theirs. The survey was, by design, a rapid one since I didn't want to give them a chance to realize that if the mid-length skirts come in they're going to be faced with buying their wives a whole new wardrobe. That would have influenced their opinion probably more than any other factor.

However, in the process of the experiment I did cover one salient fact. In this weather a mid-length skirt is incomparably warmer, girls. But it does give you the feeling that something's slipping.

National listings for local women

Stroudsburg — This seems to be the season of the year for recognition of outstanding women. According to stories sent to the Pocono Record, four present or former residents of this area are being recognized in national publications.

Making their first appearance in Who's Who of American Women, are Anne Louise Baroux Strickland of Mount Pocono, active in the management of Strickland's Mountain Inn, and past president of the Woman's Club of the Stroudsburgs and the Ann Logan Society of the General Hospital, and Carol Baierle Price Sams, now of State College, editor of the Education Journal.

The biographical dictionary totals 22,000 names chosen by the editors of the parent publication — Who's Who in America — from all meritorious vocations and civic activities.

Selected to appear in the 1967 edition of "Outstanding Youth Women of America" are Mrs. Susan Elizabeth Cood Judy, wife of the assistant dean of men at East Stroudsburg State College, and Mrs. Sharon Irene Bitterman Morgan, who now lives at 305 Northwood Drive, Wzark, Alabama.

These younger women have been honored because of their outstanding contributions and accomplishments in civic endeavors, religious, activities.

From list of nominees submitted by local women, the board of advisory editors has chosen those women it thinks most exemplify the term "Outstanding".

Thumb sucking on way out but not underlying causes

BY EVELYA IVEY
St. Petersburg Times
St. Petersburg, Fla. (AP) — Children's thumb sucking, which has been a source of irritation for parents throughout the ages, gradually is losing its popularity with the young set.

It is being replaced by symptoms—such actions as underachieving at school, stealing or refusing to help and share responsibilities at home.

In other words, today's youngster is more apt to express his emotional conflicts in behavior patterns rather than through physical or organic manifestations.

These are the observations of both Dr. Walter White and Dr. Jerome Rosenblum. Dr. White is director and Dr. Rosenblum is chief clinical psychologist at the Pinellas County Child Guidance Clinic, where 229 emotionally disturbed children are currently undergoing treatment.

One reason for this change in behavior patterns, suggest Dr. White, could be the switch our society has been undergoing toward more mobility coupled with an accelerated pace of living.

Children today, both doctors say, are exposed to more violence—on television, in the movies and in the news.

Psychiatrists and clinical psychologists are looking more and more into a child's total environment for answers to his emotional problems.

How can the child headed for emotional problems be recognized?

Usually he will display several immature symptoms or a "cluster" of anti-social characteristics.

For instance, explain both men, a child that persistently and frequently displays anti-social characteristics is building a pattern that will lead to serious problems.

Temper tantrums are normal in a small child but not in a teen-ager or adult. When this problem is displayed along with a "cluster" of other undesirable habits (bedwetting, thumb sucking, stealing, etc.) then the youngster is heading for emotional troubles. Both doctors point out, however, that the

"cluster" of anti-social characteristics must appear with persistence and frequency to be significant signals of a mental breakdown.

Most emotional problems are created by the entire family. There are some, however, with strictly physiological roots.

Dr. White estimates about 10 per cent of the youngsters now undergoing treatment at the guidance center have emotional problems attributable strictly to physical defects. For instance the child with an eye defect or hearing impairment oftentimes goes undetected unless specialized tests are administered.

Allergies, too, Dr. White points out, "are not 10 per cent emotional." There is some underlying physical reason, he says, for hives, asthma, hay fever, and eczema.

A physical defect just as a feeling of defeat or inadequacy ("Everyone," Dr. White contends, "must have a certain amount of success—it is necessary for a person's children are no exception.") can perpetuate a pattern of unworthiness or defeat.

Lacking a feeling of worth or self respect, a child becomes frustrated and the emotional pattern unravels, oftentimes developing in to the "cluster" of anti-social characteristics. He thinks for himself as inadequate so he acts out his inadequacy by underachieving which leads to frustrations and being treated by his peers as an inadequate person—the vicious circle forms and the pattern eventually emotionally cripples him.

These area Mothers are ready to get the ball rolling tonight for the Annual Mother's March for the March of Dimes. Shown left to right are: Mrs. Frank Buck, Stroudsburg; Mrs. Ronald Saxton, Stroudsburg, Chairman of the Mother's March, and Mrs. James Driebe, Stroudsburg. Each volunteer calling at your home will wear a Mother's March badge and carry a kit identifying them as bonafide volunteers.

The March of Dimes was started in 1938 to lead the fight against polio. Thanks to the contributions of thousands of Americans, and untold hours of work by volunteers, the Salk vaccine was developed and pronounced effective in 1955. No health organization anywhere has a brighter chapter in its history than the March of Dimes has in its victory over polio.

Now, the March of Dimes has turned its attention to the very serious problem of birth defects in children. How serious is this problem? In this country, each year, there are 250,000 babies born with a birth defect. That's 1 out of every 16 babies. There are over 600 known types of birth defects and the March of Dimes is helping to support medical centers where research and development work is being carried on to find the causes, and preventatives, of birth defects. In addition, the March of Dimes now maintains 77 Birth Defect Centers where children can go to receive the latest in medical aid and assistance. Children in Monroe County have 2 hospitals available to them in Philadelphia (Children's Hospital & St. Christophers) where they can receive treatment from doctors specializing in birth defects.

"Most people don't realize the toll in human lives taken by birth defects. Only heart diseases cause more deaths," declared Mrs. Ronald Saxton, chairman of the 1968 Mothers' March for the March of Dimes in Monroe County. "Even more tragic," she said, "is the survival of large numbers of children suffering from defects which can doom them to lives of physical or mental disability." Funds raised in the Mothers' March will support medical, scientific research, rehabilitation, and a nationwide education program on the importance of medical attention during pregnancy.

"Please help us to continue this child-saving work by contributing to the volunteer Marchers who will visit your home this week," said Mrs. Saxton.

Of the money collected in our county each year for the March of Dimes, one-quarter of it goes to research. Part of the balance is transferred to the National Foundation headquarters for support of the 77 Birth Defects Centers. The balance is kept in the county and assists the Monroe County Chapter of the March of Dimes in giving direct aid to birth defective children in the county. In addition your contributions help the local chapter in promoting an educational program throughout Monroe County. This program provides birth defects information for doctor's offices, pre-natal clinics, visiting nurses, state health nurses, and college and high school science classes.

As Mr. Michael Miller, chapter chairman of the Monroe County Chapter of The March of Dimes points out "Our aim for 1968 is to continue our patient aid program and through a Public Education Program, make every citizen of Monroe County aware of the March of Dimes and what it can do to help the birth defect child, the family and the community."

"Even more tragic," she said, "is the survival of large numbers of children suffering from defects which can doom them to lives of physical or mental disability." Funds raised in the Mothers' March will support medical, scientific research, rehabilitation, and a nationwide education program on the importance of medical attention during pregnancy.

"Please help us to continue this child-saving work by contributing to the volunteer Marchers who will visit your home this week," said Mrs. Saxton.

Of the money collected in our county each year for the March of Dimes, one-quarter of it goes to research. Part of the balance is transferred to the National Foundation headquarters for support of the 77 Birth Defects Centers. The balance is kept in the county and assists the Monroe County Chapter of the March of Dimes in giving direct aid to birth defective children in the county. In addition your contributions help the local chapter in promoting an educational program throughout Monroe County. This program provides birth defects information for doctor's offices, pre-natal clinics, visiting nurses, state health nurses, and college and high school science classes.

As Mr. Michael Miller, chapter chairman of the Monroe County Chapter of The March of Dimes points out "Our aim for 1968 is to continue our patient aid program and through a Public Education Program, make every citizen of Monroe County aware of the March of Dimes and what it can do to help the birth defect child, the family and the community."

January thaw brings 48-degree weather

STROUDSBURG — Even though for the last five days an area warming trend has taken on the climbing graph aspect of a Wall Street "bull market," Sunday's balmy high of 48 degrees was 19 degrees below Stroudsburg's record high of 67, set Jan. 21, 1966.

Last year, on Jan. 25, the temperature soared to 66 degrees.

Last year, area ski resort managers adopted a stiff upper lip attitude towards that "June in January" heat wave.

However, at the end of the ski season, the brave front was really not needed; nearly nine feet of snow fell from November to March.

The culprit responsible for the "balmy weather" is something the weather bureau calls a "singularity." The bureau defines a singularity as "a characteristic meteorological condition which tends to occur on or near a specific date more frequently than chance would indicate."

One singularity that nature lovers and just plain lovers look forward to is Indian Summer in the fall. The other one is the January thaw. The January thaw reaches its peak from Jan. 20 to 23. The thaw is usually associated with southerly winds on the back side of a high pressure system off the Southeastern United States.

The current five day forecast, Tuesday through Saturday, calls for above normal temperatures, with the highs in the low fifties, according to the Wilkes-Barre - Avoca weather bureau.

With area temperatures well above freezing during the day and near freezing at night, according to the next five day forecast, the county's secondary roads will no doubt be bare and safe.

Area Christians express concern for common goals

By BOBBY WESTBROOK
Family Fare Editor
STROUDSBURG — Laymen of Protestant and Catholic churches in Stroudsburg joined in a panel discussion last night in St. Luke's Roman Catholic Church, which demonstrated both common aspirations and individual, but not denominational differences in approach.

The downstairs meeting room was filled for the meeting which is the second in a series of three during the Octave for Christian Unity.

Thomas Blair of East Stroudsburg State College faculty, served as moderator of the panel whose attention had been directed to three questions:

"What does the church mean to you personally?" "What do you wish it could mean?" "How can the church overcome its inwardness?"

"There have been times when the church has seemed near death," he said, "unrelated to life outside its doors and irrelevant to current issues. It is at such times that it has revitalized itself through revolution," Blair said, adding:

"We are in the midst of such a revolution now. One phase of that revolution is ecumenical, the effort of the church to unify itself, to study those things which separate Christians who should be one in Christ. The other phase is becoming concerned with conditions, problems and aspirations of man."

Robert Hellmann of the First

Presbyterian Church of Stroudsburg as the first speaker defined a Christian as one who claims Christ as his personal savior, and the church as the place where a man could have his spiritual batteries recharged to go out to work in the world.

"We have come to regard schools as a cure-all for all ills," he said, "but man needs a purpose as well as knowledge. In the church's teaching that the chief end of man is to glorify God and enjoy him forever he can find that purpose."

He advocated sharing that joy with others, catching on fire with the Holy Spirit working in life.

Stephen Matos of St. John's Lutheran Church, approached the questions from the scientific viewpoint. He decried those who feared that in man's venture into the vast reaches of space he was stepping out of man's domain.

Citing the parable of the talents, he said man was meant to use his God-given intelligence as a means of alleviating suffering and expanding knowledge.

Mrs. Marie Rott of the Stroudsburg Methodist Church defined the church as the body of Christ on earth whose function was to do the work of God, as exemplified by Christ's concern for people and their needs. She hailed the fact that in 1968 in Stroudsburg there were concerned clergy and urged that people of different sectarian backgrounds not only talk together but work together.

Mrs. Shirley Cummings of St. Luke's Catholic Church concentrated on her concern as a watching what we do. They have had enough of words and it is time for action. Young people are not questioning authority as such, but they are questioning how we have misused and misplaced that authority.

Dr. James Fahl of Christ Episcopal Church found in the church a means of adding dignity and meaning to important facts in family life, education in the understanding the tenets of the faith and a means of affirmation of person faith.

What he would like to see is a continual review of liturgy and music to insure that it still has its original impact; a revitalized Christian education on a community basis and pooling of community resources and an involvement of seminarians in all academic disciplines.

Questions and suggestions from the floor ranged from specific ones such as "How do you feel about baptism, communion and marriage outside of your own denomination?" to suggestions for enlarging the new "Monroe County Council of Churches" to include laymen as well as priests, ministers and rabbis.

The third and final interfaith meeting of the week will be an ecumenical worship service on Wednesday night at St. John's Lutheran Church with Dr. Homer Obrighausen of Princeton Theological Seminary as the speaker.

Resolutions readied

Tocks assembly to meet Feb. 17

STROUDSBURG — The Tocks Island Regional Advisory Council Assembly will meet 10:30 a.m. February 17 in Reher's Restaurant, Barryville, N.Y.

The Assembly, which consists of delegates from the seven-member counties, is expected to act on several resolutions.

TIRAC's executive committee, at a meeting Saturday morning in Stroudsburg, reviewed and approved to bring the resolutions before the Assembly.

One of the resolutions is the adoption of a uniform building permit within the seven counties. The building permits would be used to gauge growth in the area. In Monroe County, the permits would be a part of the State Sewage Act 537 permits.

Frank Dressler, executive director of TIRAC, said that a report on staff activities was given to the executive committee members.

Monroe County Commissioners Elwood Hintze and Mrs. Nancy Shukaitis, who are the county's delegates to TIRAC, attended their first meeting Saturday.

Hintze, who is Monroe County's voting member, said, "I was impressed with it. I think TIRAC is a very necessary thing." Mrs. Shukaitis is the alternate voting member for the county.

Delegate sees no conflict

STROUDSBURG — Mrs. Nancy Shukaitis, Monroe County's alternate voting delegate to the Tocks Island Regional Advisory Council, said Sunday she sees no conflict between that agency and a group dedicated to halting the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area and Tocks Island Reservoir.

Mrs. Shukaitis, newly appointed delegate to TIRAC, is corresponding secretary and one of the founders of the Delaware Valley Conservation Association (DVCA).

The DVCA last summer filed an appeal with the U. S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit, Philadelphia, seeking an injunction.

The U. S. District Court of Middle Pennsylvania, Scranton, had dismissed a DVCA suit last June against the federal government to halt the projects.

Mrs. Shukaitis, Republican Monroe County Commissioner, said the DVCA is comprised of persons who own properties within the two federal projects and that the group — a Delaware Corporation — is concerned with the protection of the area involved in the two projects.

TIRAC, Mrs. Shukaitis said, is also concerned with protecting the environment of the seven county area.

Mrs. Shukaitis said the purpose of the DVCA is to protect the Delaware River Valley. She added that TIRAC is also designed to protect the area, and therefore, in itself, is a conservation group.

"I don't feel there is a conflict," she said, "because they're both interested in protecting."

Towed car involved in crash

MOUNT POCONO — A 58-year-old Tobyhanna man was injured Sunday afternoon in a three-car crash on Rt. 611, near the Tasty Freeze, in Mount Pocono. Two other persons were slightly injured in the crash also.

According to Mount Pocono Borough Police, Andrew Inzerill was thrown to the highway when his towed vehicle was struck by a south bound car.

He was taken to the General Hospital of Monroe County where he was treated for scalp lacerations and released.

The others injured were Elaine Saunders, 47, and Carolyn Saunders, 19, passengers in the car driven by Willse Saunders, 74, of Scranton. They were treated at the scene by Dr. E. G. Headricks.

According to police, a car driven by Henry Lemaire, 67, of Mount Pocono, was towing the Inzerill car on a 10-foot tow chain and was entering the highway from a private drive. The Inzerill car was struck by the Saunders vehicle. The force of the impact threw Inzerill to the highway.

Police did not have any estimate of damage at the time.

Blue Cross seeking increases from county policy holders

STROUDSBURG — A 15.2 per cent increase in payments may be in store for the majority of subscribers to Blue Cross of Northeastern Pennsylvania.

The increase represents $1,867,000 from subscribers in the 13 county area consisting of Monroe, Pike, Bradford, Carbon, Clinton, Lackawanna, Luzerne, Lycoming, Sullivan, Susquehanna, Tioga, Wayne and Wyoming.

Blue Cross has filed a request of an overall 15.2 per cent rate increase with the State Insurance Department. The rate increase would be for subscribers whose rating year begins April 1.

A total 309,517 persons could be affected if the rates are increased. This number represents a total 72 per cent of Blue Cross's subscribers in Northeastern Pennsylvania.

State Insurance Commissioner David O. Maxwell has set a public hearing on the proposed rate increases. The hearing will be 9 a.m. February 1 in Wilkes-Barre. It will be in the Orphans Court Room on the second floor of the Luzerne County Courthouse.

"At the hearing," Commissioner Maxwell said, "Blue Cross of Northeastern Pennsylvania will have an opportunity to present their specific projection of rate changes to take place during the coming year and the reasons for these changes."

"This public hearing," Commissioner Maxwell continued, "is intended to afford full disclosure to the citizens of the 13 county area served by Blue Cross in arriving at the rates charged to its subscribers, while at the same time allowing the public to voice opinions on Blue Cross rate changes."

Sister, Miriam Ruth, administrator of Mercy Hospital, Scranton, has been invited to attend the hearing. She is president of the Northeastern Regional District of the Hospital Association of Pennsylvania.

Robert Gloman, administrator of the Wilkes-Barre Hospital, has also been invited to attend. He is chairman of the Administrator's Advisory Committee to Blue Cross.

Charles Swisher, administrator of General Hospital of Monroe County, is a member of Gloman's committee.

Maxwell said that the proposed rate increase would effect credible (large) groups, non-credible (small) groups, non-group or direct pay and student subscribers. These total 72 per cent of the subscribers.

Not affected are the over-65 special or individually negotiated master group contracts.

Area Christians express concern for common goals

By BOBBY WESTBROOK
Family Fare Editor
STROUDSBURG — Laymen of Protestant and Catholic churches in Stroudsburg joined in a panel discussion last night in St. Luke's Roman Catholic Church, which demonstrated both common aspirations and individual, but not denominational differences in approach.

The downstairs meeting room was filled for the meeting which is the second in a series of three during the Octave for Christian Unity.

Thomas Blair of East Stroudsburg State College faculty, served as moderator of the panel whose attention had been directed to three questions:

"What does the church mean to you personally?" "What do you wish it could mean?" "How can the church overcome its inwardness?"

"There have been times when the church has seemed near death," he said, "unrelated to life outside its doors and irrelevant to current issues. It is at such times that it has revitalized itself through revolution," Blair said, adding: "We are in the midst of such a revolution now. One phase of that revolution is ecumenical, the effort of the church to unify itself, to study those things which separate Christians who should be one in Christ. The other phase is becoming concerned with conditions, problems and aspirations of man."

Robert Hellmann of the First

Presbyterian Church of Stroudsburg as the first speaker defined a Christian as one who claims Christ as his personal savior, and the church as the place where a man could have his spiritual batteries recharged to go out to work in the world.

"We have come to regard schools as a cure-all for all ills," he said, "but man needs a purpose as well as knowledge. In the church's teaching that the chief end of man is to glorify God and enjoy him forever he can find that purpose."

He advocated sharing that joy with others, catching on fire with the Holy Spirit working in life.

Stephen Matos of St. John's Lutheran Church, approached the questions from the scientific viewpoint. He decried those who feared that in man's venture into the vast reaches of space he was stepping out of man's domain.

Citing the parable of the talents, he said man was meant to use his God-given intelligence as a means of alleviating suffering and expanding knowledge.

Mrs. Marie Rutt of the Stroudsburg Methodist Church defined the church as the body of Christ on earth whose function was to do the work of God, as exemplified by Christ's concern for people and their needs. She hailed the fact that in 1968 in Stroudsburg there were concerned clergy and urged that people of different sectarian backgrounds not only talk together but work together.

Mrs. Shirley Cummings of St. Luke's Catholic Church concentrated on her concern as a watching what we do. They have had enough of words and it is time for action. Young people are not questioning authority as such, but they are questioning how we have misused and misplaced that authority."

Dr. James Fahl of Christ Episcopal Church found in the church a means of adding dignity and meaning to important facts in family life, education in the understanding the tenets of the faith and a means of affirmation of person faith.

What he would like to see is a continual review of liturgy and music to insure that it still has its original impact; a revitalized Christian education on a community basis and pooling of community resources and an involvement of seminarians in all academic disciplines.

Questions and suggestions from the floor ranged from specific ones such as "How do you feel about baptism, communion and marriage outside of your own denomination?" to suggestions for enlarging the new "Monroe County Council of Churches" to include laymen as well as priests, ministers and rabbis.

The third and final inter-faith meeting of the week will be an ecumenical worship service on Wednesday night at St. John's Lutheran Church with Dr. Homer O'Brien of Princeton Theological Seminary as the speaker.

Resolutions readied

Tocks assembly to meet Feb. 17

STROUDSBURG — The Tocks Island Regional Advisory Council Assembly will meet 10:30 a.m. February 17 in Reber's Restaurant, Barryville, N.Y.

The Assembly, which consists of delegates from the seven-member counties, is expected to act on several resolutions.

TIRAC's executive committee, at a meeting Saturday morning in Stroudsburg, reviewed and approved to bring the resolutions before the Assembly.

One of the resolutions is the adoption of a uniform building permit within the seven counties. The building permits would be used to gauge growth in the area. In Monroe County, the permits would be a part of the State Sewage Act 537 permits.

Frank Dressler, executive director of TIRAC, said that a report on staff activities was given to the executive committee members.

Monroe County Commissioners Elwood Hintze and Mrs. Nancy Shukaitis, who are the county's delegates to TIRAC, attended their first meeting Saturday.

Hintze, who is Monroe County's voting member, said, "I was impressed with it. I think TIRAC is a very necessary thing." Mrs. Shukaitis is the alternate voting member for the county.

Delegate sees no conflict

STROUDSBURG — Mrs. Nancy Shukaitis, Monroe County's alternate voting delegate to the Tocks Island Regional Advisory Council, said Sunday she sees no conflict between that agency and a group dedicated to halting the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area and Tocks Island Reservoir.

Mrs. Shukaitis, newly appointed delegate to TIRAC, is corresponding secretary and one of the founders of the Delaware Valley Conservation Association (DVCA).

The DVCA last summer filed an appeal with the U. S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit, Philadelphia, seeking an injunction.

The U. S. District Court of Middle Pennsylvania, Scranton, had dismissed a DVCA suit last June against the federal government to halt the projects.

Mrs. Shukaitis, Republican Monroe County Commissioner, said the DVCA is comprised of persons who own properties within the two federal projects and that the group — a Delaware Corporation — is concerned with the protection of the area involved in the two projects.

TIRAC, Mrs. Shukaitis said, is also concerned with protecting the environment of the seven county area.

Mrs. Shukaitis said the purpose of the DVCA is to protect the Delaware River Valley. She added that TIRAC is also designed to protect the area, and therefore, in itself, is a conservation group.

"I don't feel there is a conflict," she said, "because they're both interested in protecting."

Blue Cross seeking increases from county policy holders

STROUDSBURG — A 15.2 per cent increase in payments may be in store for the majority of subscribers to Blue Cross of Northeastern Pennsylvania.

The increase represents $1,867,000 from subscribers in the 13 county area consisting of Monroe, Pike, Bradford, Carbon, Clinton, Lackawanna, Luzerne, Lycoming, Sullivan, Susquehanna, Tioga, Wayne and Wyoming.

Blue Cross has filed a request of an overall 15.2 per cent rate increase with the State Insurance Department. The rate increase would be for subscribers whose rating year begins April 1.

A total 309,517 persons could be affected if the rates are increased. This number represents a total 72 per cent of Blue Cross's subscribers in Northeastern Pennsylvania.

State Insurance Commissioner David O. Maxwell has set a public hearing on the proposed rate increases. The hearing will be 9 a.m. February 1 in Wilkes-Barre. It will be in the Orphans Court Room on the second floor of the Luzerne County Courthouse.

"At the hearing," Commissioner Maxwell said, "Blue Cross of Northeastern Pennsylvania will have an opportunity to present their specific projection of rate changes to take place during the coming year and the reasons for these changes."

"This public hearing," Commissioner Maxwell continued, "is intended to afford full disclosure to the citizens of the 13 county area served by the plan of the factors used by Blue Cross in arriving at the rates charged to its subscribers, while at the same time allowing the public to voice opinions on Blue Cross rate changes."

Sister, Miriam Ruth, administrator of Mercy Hospital, Scranton, has been invited to attend the hearing. She is president of the Northeastern Regional District of the Hospital Association of Pennsylvania.

Robert Gloman, administrator of the Wilkes-Barre Hospital, has also been invited to attend. He is chairman of the Administrator's Advisory Committee to Blue Cross.

Charles Swisher, administrator of General Hospital of Monroe County, is a member of Gloman's committee.

Maxwell said that the proposed rate increase would effect credible (large) groups, non-credible (small) groups, non-group or direct pay and student subscribers. These total 72 per cent of the subscribers.

Not affected are the over-65 special or individually negotiated master group contracts.

Houston holds Lew to only 15 points

Hayes' greatest game wrecks Bruins

Houston (AP) — UCLA Coach John Wooden surveyed the wreckage of a 47-game winning streak and shrugged. "Well, I guess we'll just have to start all over again."

"This is the greatest thrill of my life," Houston Coach Guy Lewis said Saturday night after his Cougars had upset the nation's top-ranked college basketball team 71-69 before a record crowd of 52,693 in the Astrodome.

"We were beaten by a better team," said Lew Alcinder, the 7-foot-1 super star for UCLA, who refused to use the excuse of an injured eye for a sub par performance.

Elvin Hayes, Houston's 6-foot-8 All-American, and 6-foot-9 Ken Spain combined to put the defensive clamps on the awesome Alcinder, Hayes playing what he called "the greatest game of my life."

Hayes finished with 39 points, including 17 of 25 from the field, 15 rebounds and four assists. Three times he blocked shots by Alcinder and twice intercepted passes intended for the UCLA center.

Alcinder, who missed UCLA's two previous games because of an eye injury and got a medical okay for this one only a couple of hours before game time, had only 15 points, including four of 18 from the field and 12 rebounds.

"Our plan was to keep Alcinder bottled up and cut off his passing lanes to his cornermen, Lynn Shackelford and Mike Lynn," Lewis said.

That defensive effort plus Houston's unflappable poise in the face of UCLA's famed press and a poor shooting night for the Bruins told the story. UCLA hit on only 26 of 77 from the field, 33.6 per cent, compared with a season average of 50 per cent. Houston was 30 of 65.

Houston, ranked No. 2 in the nation with a 16-0 record going into the game, bolted in front in the opening minutes 13-12 and never trailed again. The Cougars led by nine points three times in the first half and, sparked by Hayes' 29-point effort, had a 46-43 margin at intermission.

They spent most of the last half fighting off repeated Bruin threats.

Five times UCLA closed to within two points and they tied it three times, the last at 69-69 with only 4 seconds to go on two free throws by Lucius Allen.

But Hayes, who had been playing the last 11 minutes with four fouls, was fouled by Jim Nielsen with 28 seconds to go and broke the tie with two free throws.

Now UCLA trailed by two but had one last chance to tie it. The Bruins brought the ball downcourt — and blew it on an uncharacteristic mixup on signals. A pass to Shackelford in the corner was tipped out of bounds by teammate Mike Warren. Houston then ran out the last 12 seconds.

Allen finished with 25 points for UCLA. Warren had 13 and Shackelford 10. George Reynolds had 13 and Don Chaney 11 for Houston.

UCLA's defeat by Houston overshadowed all other developments on the college courts Saturday night.

Sixth-ranked New Mexico and seventh-ranked St. Bonaventure remained unbeaten, but fourth-ranked Tennessee, fifth-ranked Utah and eighth-ranked Kentuck ky each lost.

New Mexico made it 16 straight by downing Brigham Young 84-69, and St. Bonaventure extended its streak to 13 by taking Canisius 71-65.

Tennessee fell before Florida 59-46. Utah was tripped by Wyoming 81-72 and Kentucky dropped a 74-73 squeaker to Auburn on Tom Perry's two free throws with 36 seconds left.

The defeat kept Adolph Rupp, Kentucky coach, from equalling the all-time career victory record of 771 held by the retired Phog Allen of Kansas.

Columbia, 10th-ranked, routed Cornell 93-51. Third-ranked North Carolina and ninth-ranked Vanderbilt did not play.

Among the independents St. Francis, Pa., toppled St. Peter's of New Jersey with the unbeaten ranks 88-78.

S-burg wins 27 to 21 on Keenhold's pin

STROUDSBURG — Dale Keenhold is gradually gaining the reputation of "Mr. Clutch" for the Stroudsburg High School wrestling team.

For the second straight match Keenhold, unbeaten in seven meets, was the difference between victory and defeat.

Saturday night Keenhold pinned Belvidere's Charles

Chrismore in 2:46 to give the Mounties (5-3) a 27-21 victory.

It looked like the Mounties would breeze home as they built up a 15-2 lead after four bouts on a draw by freshman Kevin Yost at 97; pins by Mike Stollinski (105), and Dan Moyer (122) and a decision by Bob Stettler (114).

But in the next seven bouts Stroudsburg picked up only seven points on a fall by Paul Lesoine (135) and a draw from Ed Strunk (147).

The most heart-breaking bout for Mountie followers came at 156 pounds when Ernie Neyhart, competing at this weight for the first time, had a 7-0 lead when he was pinned by Joe Peppe.

Belvidere winners were Charles Smith (129), Gary Osman (138), Don Hendershot (167) and Gene Brandt (182).

In addition to Keenhold (7-0), Moyer is unbeaten in eight bouts. Stollinski owns a 6-1 mark. Stettler 5-1 and Strunk has lost only once but has been in draw his last two times out.

Belvidere captured the junior varsity match, 28-17.

At 114 — Tost, S. and Gray, drew, 5-2 (2-2).
105 — Stollinski, S. pinned Alcinder in 6:00 (7-2).
114 — Stettler, S. decisioned Cronin, 11-1 (10-2).

Zarley wins first since turning pro

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — Former collegiate champion Kermit Zarley finally won a professional golf tournament, after five years of trying, when his birdie barrage captured the $125,000 Kaiser International Sunday.

The lanky 26-year-old from Seattle, Wash., fired a 7 under par 65 for his final round over the Silverado Country Club's north course for a 72-hole total of 273, under par by 15 strokes.

Zarley, who started four strokes off Dave Marr's third round pace carded a two under par 34 for his first nine and then surged in front with birds on the 11th, 12th and 13th holes. He added birdies on the 16th and 17th.

Wins by shot
Winner of the National Collegiate Athletic Association championship in 1962, the 6-foot-1, 165-pound Zarley finished one stroke ahead of Dave Marr who had led the second and third rounds.

The 34-year-old Marr, from Larchmont, N.Y., carded a 2-under par 70 for his 274.

George Archer on Gene Littler tied for third at 276 with 70 and 69 respectively.

Zarley reached the nine-hole turn one stroke behind Marr and deadlocked with Littler and Archer.

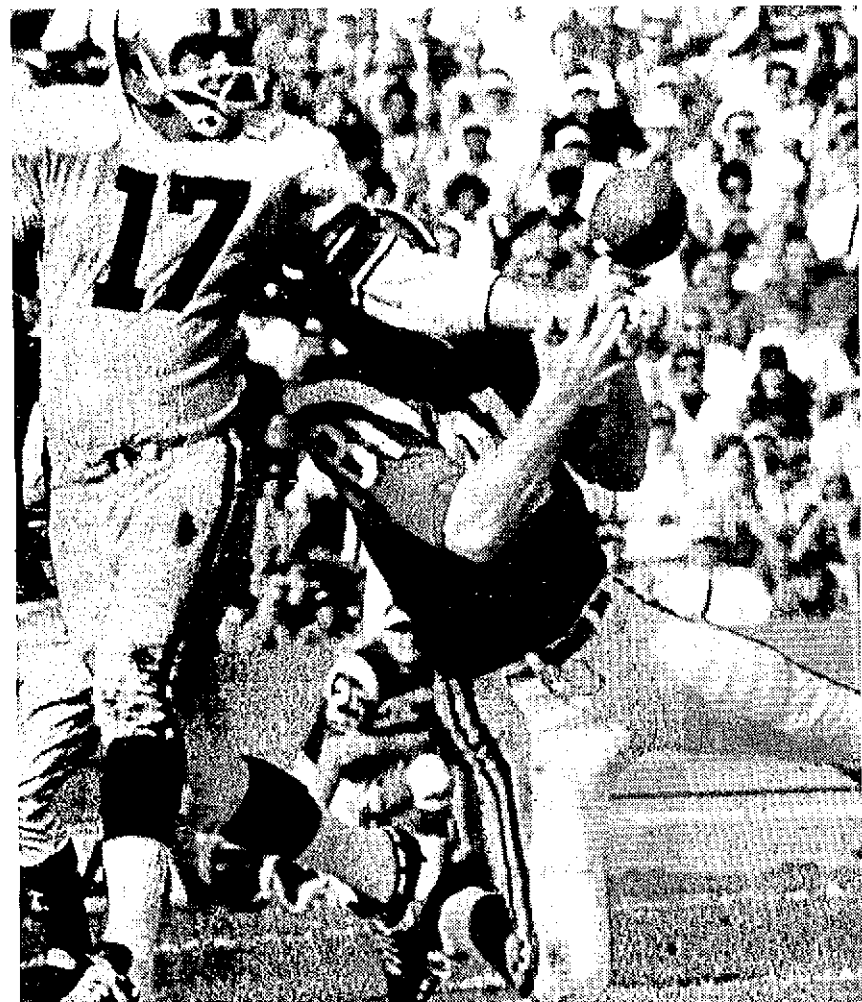

Double bogey
Marr, 1965 PGA tournament winner, ruined his chances with a double bogey five on the 195-yard seventh hole.

Zarley settled the issue when he dropped birdie puts of 40 feet at the 11th hole, eight at the 12th and 20 at the 13th. He missed an eagle by scant inches at the 16th and dropped a seven-foot putt at the 17th.

His 65 equals the competitive record set earlier this week by Billy Casper over the relatively new course where the tournament was held for the first time.

That defensive effort plus Houston's unflappable poise in the face of UCLA's famed press and a poor shooting night for the Bruins told the story. UCLA hit on only 26 of 77 from the field, 33.6 per cent, compared with a season average of 50 per cent. Houston was 30 of 66.

Houston, ranked No. 2 in the nation with a 16-0 record going into the game, bolted in front in the opening minutes 13-12 and never trailed again. The Cougars led by nine points three times in the first half and, sparked by Hayes' 29-point effort, had a 46-43 margin at intermission.

They spent most of the last half fighting off repeated Bruin threats.

Five times UCLA closed to within two points and they tied it three times, the last at 69-69 with only 4 seconds to go on two free throws by Lucius Allen.

But Hayes, who had been playing the last 11 minutes with four fouls, was fouled by Jim Nielsen with 28 seconds to go and broke the tie with two free throws.

Now UCLA trailed by two but had one last chance to tie it. The Bruins brought the ball downcourt — and blew it on an uncharacteristic mixup on signals. A pass to Shackelford in the corner was tipped out of bounds by teammate Mike Warren. Houston then ran out the last 12 seconds.

Allen finished with 25 points for UCLA, Warren had 13 and Shackelford 10. George Reynolds had 13 and Don Chaney 11 for Houston.

UCLA's defeat by Houston overshadowed all other developments on the college courts Saturday night.

Sixth-ranked New Mexico and seventh-ranked St. Bonaventure remained unbeaten, but fourth-ranked Tennessee, fifth-ranked Utah and eighth-ranked Kentucky each lost.

New Mexico made it 16 straight by downing Brigham Young 84-69, and St. Bonaventure extended its streak to 13 by taking Canisius 71-65.

Tennessee fell before Florida 59-46, Utah was tripped by Wyoming 81-72 and Kentucky dropped a 74-73 squeaker to Auburn on Tom Perry's two free throws with 36 seconds left.

The defeat kept Adolph Rupp, Kentucky coach, from equalling the all-time career victory record of 771 held by the retired Phog Allen of Kansas.

Columbia, 10th-ranked, routed Cornell 93-51. Third-ranked North Carolina and ninth-ranked Vanderbilt did not play.

Among the independents St. Francis, Pa., topped St. Peters of New Jersey from the unbeaten ranks 88-78.

Belvidere's Charles Smith (on top) in complete control of Stroudsburg's Dan Keuler in the 129-pound bout Saturday night. Smith gained the visitors' first win (7-0) but Mounties pulled out 27-21 victory on pin by heavyweight Dan Keenhold.

S-burg wins 27 to 21 on Keenhold's pin

STROUDSBURG — Dale Keenhold is gradually gaining the reputation of "Mr. Clutch" for the Stroudsburg High School wrestling team.

For the second straight match Keenhold, unbeaten in seven meets, was the difference between victory and defeat.

Saturday night Keenhold pinned Belvidere's Charles

Chrisamore in 2:46 to give the Mounties (5-3) a 27-21 victory.

It looked like the Mounties would breeze home as they built up a 15-2 lead after four bouts on a draw by freshman Kevin Yost at 97; pins by Mike Stolsinski (105), and Dan Moyer (122) and a decision by Bob Stettler (114).

But in the next seven bouts Stroudsburg picked up only seven points on a fall by Paul Lesoine (135) and a draw from Ed Strunk (147).

The most heart-breaking bout for Mountie followers came at 156 pounds when Ernie Neyhart, competing at this weight for the first time, had a 7-0 lead when he was pinned by Joe Peppe.

Belvidere winners were Charles Smith (129), Gary Osman (138), Don Hendershot (167) and Gene Brandt (182).

In addition to Keenhold (7-0), Moyer is unbeaten in eight bouts. Stolsinski owns a 6-1 mark, Stettler 5-1 and Strunk has lost only once but has been in draw his last two times out.

Zarley wins first since turning pro

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — Former collegiate champion Kermit Zarley finally won a professional golf tournament, after five years of trying, when his birdie barrage captured the $125,000 Kaiser International Sunday.

The lanky 26-year-old from Seattle, Wash., fired a 7 under par 65 for his final round over the Silverado Country Club's north course for a 72-hole total of 273, under par by 15 strokes.

Zarley, who started four strokes off Dave Marr's third round pace carded a two under par 34 for his first nine and then surged in front with birds on the 11th, 12th and 13th holes. He added birdies on the 16th and 17th.

Wins by shot

Winner of the National Collegiate Athletic Association championship in 1962, the 6-foot-1, 165-pound Zarley finished one stroke ahead of Dave Marr who had led the second and third rounds.

The 34-year-old Marr, from Larchmont, N.Y., carded a 2-under par 70 of r his 274.

George Archer an Gene Littler tied for third at 276 with 70 and 69 respectively.

Zarley reached the nine-hole turn one stroke behind Marr and deadlocked with Littler and Archer.

Double bogey

Marr, 1965 PGA tournament winner, ruined his chances with a double bogey five on the 195-yard seventh hole.

Zarley settled the issue when he dropped birdie putts of 40 feet at the 11th hole, eight at the 12th and 20 at the 13th.

He missed an eagle by scant inches at the 16th and dropped a seven-foot putt at the 17th.

His 65 equals the competitive record set earlier this week by Billy Casper over the relatively new course where the tournament was held for the first time.

Tim Wood, Peg Fleming skate champs

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—U.S. figure skating has returned to the place it was before a 1961 airplane crash took the lives of the entire American team, but still find it hard to dominate international competition, a noted coach says.

Carlo Fassi, who coaches defending world champion Peggy Fleming and other members of his Broadmoor Skating Club team in Colorado Springs, Colo., made this observation at the four-day U.S. Figure Skating Championships that wound up here Sunday.

The 19-year-old Miss Fleming won her fifth straight national title Saturday night with an almost perfect free-skating performance. Earlier in the day Tim Wood of the Detroit Skating Club took the men's title.

The first three in each division qualified for the U.S. Olympic team which competes in the Winter Games starting Feb. 6 in Grenoble, France.

Albertina Noyes of the Skating Club of New York was runner-up to Miss Fleming for the fifth consecutive year in the women's singles while Janet Lynn, a 14-year-old pixie from Rockford, Ill., took third.

In the men's competition, defending champion Gary Visconti of the Detroit club was second and John Petkevich of Great Falls, Mont., was third.

The 38-year-old Fassi came to this country from Milan, Italy, in 1961 to replace Broadmoor's coach who was killed in the crash of the American team's plane seven years ago.

Fassi said new rules and increased dedication and participation by European countries in figure skating ruled out the kind of domination the U.S. had in 1956 and 1960 when it finished one, two, three in the men's and first and second in the women's events at the Olympics.

"A number of the Communist countries," Fassi said, "are devoting lots of money and time to figure skating. More countries are competing and getting stronger."

"Also back in 1956 and 1960 you could send four entries in each division. Now they have reduced it to three and there is strong talk this will be further cut to two. This makes it more difficult to dominate."

Fassi said he expected Miss Fleming to win a gold medal in the women's division at Grenoble. He said he feels she can defeat Hanna Maskova of Czechoslovakia and Gabriele Seyfert of East Germany, her chief competitors. Miss Fleming beat both in the World Championship at Vienna last year.

Short punts

The West's first two scores came as a result of short punts by Dallas flanker Bob Hayes. The first traveled only six yards and the second 14. Each time the West converted quickly, the first touchdown coming on Les Josephson's four-yard run and the second on a 39-yard pass from Gabriel to Detroit's Mel Farr, who caught the ball on his fingertips while flying in the end zone.

Over 100 machines competed in the two-day event, described as a success by one committee member.

Official signals the score as the East's Joe Namath, of New York, knifes his way through a pile of defenders to score the winning touchdown in the annual AFL All-Star game Sunday in Jacksonville, Fla. Namath engineered two last period touchdown drives as the East came from behind to win, 25-24.

Erratic Namath leads East to 25-24 victory

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Quarterback Joe Namath of the New York Jets, erratic for three quarters, capped a comeback with a one-yard touchdown plunge that gave the East a 25-24 victory over the West in the American Football League All-Star game Sunday.

The New York passing whiz tossed a 24-yard touchdown pass to Jet teammate Don Maynard with six minutes to play and gave the East an upset triumph with his scoring leap with 58 seconds to play.

Namath's heroics, after a dismal start in the nationally televised game that attracted a record crowd of 35,500, offset the defensive brilliance of Les Duncan, San Diego cornerback.

Duncan darted 90 yards with a kickoff return on the longest scoring play in the history of the AFL All-Star game and tied a game record by intercepting two passes.

Quarterback Davey Lamonica of the Oakland Raiders tossed a pair of touchdown passes for the West in the first half and pushed the favorites to a 21-13 lead. Len Dawson of the Kansas City Chiefs guided the West through the second half when the East pulled away.

The West had a chance with six seconds left, but veteran George Blanda's 35-yard field goal attempt was wide, leaving the East on top for only the second time in the seven-year history of the battle in which he winners pocketed $1,000 and the losers $500 each.

Namath had three passes intercepted in the first half, but he kept the East in contention with a 25-yard touchdown strike to New York teammate Pete Lammons. Buffalo's Mike Mercer kicked field goals of 10 and 33 yards for the East.

Neither team scored in the third quarter, and Blanda gave the West what appeared to be the winning margin when he booted a 28-yard field goal at the start of the final period.

But Namath teamed up with Maynard—who caught a record

nine passes in the game—and sent the East to its comeback conquest.

Lamonica threw a three-yard scoring pass to Willie Frazier of San Diego and hit Lance Alworth of San Diego with a nine-yard touchdown strike.

Namath and Maynard shared the awards as the game's top offensive player, and Duncan was selected by sportswriters and broadcasters as the defensive standout.

However, a key play in the game was contributed by Boston's Larry Garon, a last minute addition to the East's squad.

He took a short pass from Namath with two minutes to play and squirmed 26 yards to the West 10. Garon gained three yards to the seven. Hoyle Granger of Houston pounded to the one, and then Namath leaped in.

Beamon sets new long jump mark

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Bobby Beamon, a tall, thin New Yorker who competes for Texas El Paso, broke the indoor long jump record with a leap of 27-1 despite three hours sleep and a short 28-yard runway Saturday night for the top performance in the third annual NAIA Indoor Track Championships.

The 1966 record of 27-0 by Russia's Igor Ter-Ovanesyan was surpassed by the gangling sophomore on his second jump. The crowd of 5,550 gave him a roaring victory lap ovation.

He was asked if the short runway was a handicap.

"I didn't notice that it was," Beamon replied. "I got good spring off it."

"It's always a thrill to beat Ralph Boston," Beamon said after his eighth victory over the 28-year-old Olympian, coholder of the world record of 27-4 1/2, with Ter-Ovanesyan. "I scratched my last three jumps because I was tired. I jumped in Los Angeles Friday night and got only three hours sleep."

The 21-year-old native of Jamaica, N.Y., is 6-foot-2 1/2, only 155 pounds and has 9.5 speed in the 100. Two years ago as a freshman at North Carolina A&T, he fouled on all three jumps here and didn't make the finals. Since then, he said, "Boston has helped me a lot."

Beamon's performance topped a record happy meet which produced some good early season marks. Nine meet marks were broken and three equaled.

Prairie View A&M of Texas edged Texas Southern 70-67 1/2 for the team title, finishing ahead of TSU in the closing two-mile relay despite a dropped baton. Eastern Michigan had 56 1/2 and Arkansas A&M 51.

Committee bumps 20 rule changes

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — The Football Rules Committee of the National Collegiate Athletic Association bumped more than 20 suggested rule changes off the agenda Tuesday and concentrated on eight issues, including one involving the "sucker shift."

Final decisions on the rule changes are expected Wednesday.

Facing the committee was a decision on how to change the rules to prevent offensive teams from drawing an opponent offside in a line shift while allowing the offense the flexibility to react to defensive changes.

A spokesman for the committee said rules now allow an offensive line to shift if shifting is part of its routine attack; it may not shift only in special circumstances, "like on the one yard line to draw the other team offside."

Another knotty problem lay in clarifying rules for tackle eligible pass plays. Such plays may be prohibited, the committee spokesman said.

Other possible changes lay in rules governing communication between players and coaches at the sidelines; a reduction in the length of timeouts; restrictions on signaling fair catches; a cut-down on the substitution rule and a revision of clipping rules and punt coverage.

Vacancies for ski trip

The trip is for boys 14 years and older, and will take place the weekend of January 26. The group will leave by bus on Friday afternoon from the YMCA and arrive in Wilmington, Vermont, about 11 p.m.

Friday and Saturday night will be spent at the "Vermont House," a small hotel near the slopes of Mount Snow, and breakfasts and dinner will be served in the hotel dining room. The group will return to Stroudsburg about 11 p.m. Sunday. Anyone interested in joining the group is asked to call 421-2525.

Wimbledon to award $62,760

LONDON (AP) — Wimbledon, once the shrine of amateur tennis, announced that $62,760 would be paid out in prize money at the first Open Wimbledon this summer.

Maj. David Mills, secretary of the All-England Club who organizes Wimbledon, let the world know about the plans.

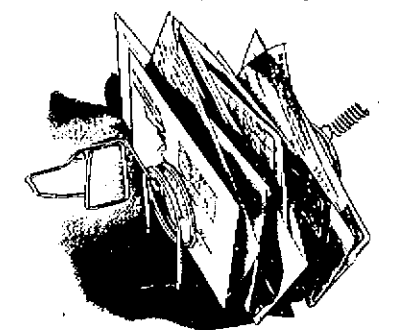

The decision to make Wimbledon an open championship was taken by the British Lawn Tennis Association in defiance of the International Federation.

The Wimbledon decision to go it alone on open tennis means British players may be ostracized from tournaments abroad.

Official signals the score as the East's Joe Namath, of New York, knifes his way through a pile of defenders to score the winning touchdown in the annual AFL All-Star game Sunday in Jacksonville, Fla. Namath engineered two last period touchdown drives as the East came from behind to win, 25-24.

Erratic Namath leads East to 25-24 victory

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Quarterback Joe Namath of the New York Jets, erratic for three quarters, capped a comeback with a one-yard touchdown plunge that gave the East a 25-24 victory over the West in the American Football League All-Star game Sunday.

The New York passing whiz tossed a 24-yard touchdown pass to Jet teammate Don Maynard with six minutes to play and gave the East an upset triumph with his scoring leap with 58 seconds to play.

Namath's heroics, after a dismal start in the nationally televised game that attracted a record crowd of 38,500, offset the defensive brilliance of Les Duncan, San Diego cornerback.

Duncan darted 90 yards with a kickoff return on the longest scoring play in the history of the AFL All-Star game and tied a game record by intercepting two passes.

Quarterback Daryle Lamoniaca of the Oakland Raiders tossed a pair of touchdown passes for the West in the first half and pushed the favorites to a 21-13 lead. Len Dawson of the Kansas City Chiefs guided the West through the second half when the East pulled away.

The West had a chance with six seconds left, but veteran George Blanda's 35-yard field goal attempt was wide, leaving the East on top for only the second time in the seven-year history of the battle in which he winners pocketed $1,000 and the losers $500 each.

Namath had three passes intercepted in the first half, but he kept the East in contention with a 35-yard touchdown strike to New York teammate Pete Lammons. Buffalo's Mike Mercer kicked field goals of 10 and 33 yards for the East.

Neither team scored in the third quarter, and Blanda gave the West what appeared to be the winning margin when he booted a 28-yard field goal at the start of the final period.

But Namath teamed up with Maynard—who caught a record

nine passes in the game—and sent the East to its comeback conquest.

Lamoniaca threw a three-yard scoring pass to Willie Frazier of San Diego and hit Lance Alworth of San Diego with a nine-yard touchdown strike.

Namath and Maynard shared the awards as the game's top offensive player, and Duncan was selected by sportswriters and broadcasters as the defensive standout.

However, a key play in the game was contributed by Boston's Larry Garon, a last minute addition to the East's squad.

He took a short pass from Namath with two minutes to play and squirmed 26 yards to the West 10. Garon gained three yards to the seven, Hoyle Granger of Houston pounded to the one, and then Namath leaped in.

Beamon sets new long jump mark

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Bobby Beamon, a tall, thin New Yorker who competes for Texas El Paso, broke the indoor long jump record with a leap of 27-1 despite three hours sleep and a short 28-yard runway Saturday night for the top performance in the third annual NAIA Indoor Track Championships.

The 1966 record of 27-0 by Russia's Igor Ter-Ovanesyan was surpassed by the gangling sophomore on his second jump. The crowd of 5,550 gave him a roaring victory lap ovation.

He was asked if the short runway was a handicap.

"I didn't notice that it was," Beamon replied. "I got good spring off it."

"It's always a thrill to beat Ralph Boston," Beamon said after his eighth victory over the 28-year-old Olympian, coholder of the world record of 27-4 3/4, with Ter-Ovanesyan. "I scratched my last three jumps because I was tired. I jumped in Los Angeles Friday night and got only three hours sleep."

The 21-year-old native of Jamaica, N.Y., is 6-foot-2 3/4, only 155 pounds and has 9.5 speed in the 100. Two years ago as a freshman at North Carolina A&T, he fouled on all three jumps here and didn't make the finals. Since then, he said, "Boston has helped me a lot."

Beamon's performance topped a record happy meet which produced some good early season marks. Nine meet marks were broken and three equalled.

Prairie View A&M of Texas edged Texas Southern 70-67 1/2 for the team title, finishing ahead of TSU in the closing two-mile relay despite a dropped baton. Eastern Michigan had 56 1/2 and Arkansas AM&N 51.

Committee bumps 20 rule changes

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — The Football Rules Committee of the National Collegiate Athletic Association bumped more than 20 suggested rule changes off the agenda Tuesday and concentrated on eight issues, including one involving the "sucker shift."

Final decisions on the rule changes are expected Wednesday.

Facing the committee was a decision on how to change the rules to prevent offensive teams from drawing an opponent offside in a line shift while allowing the offense the flexibility to react to defensive changes.

A spokesman for the committee said rules now allow an offensive line to shift if shifting is part of its routine attack; it may not shift only in special circumstances, "like on the one yard line to draw the other team offside."

Another knotty problem lay in clarifying rules for tackle eligible pass plays. Such plays may be prohibited, the committee spokesman said.

Other possible changes lay in rules governing communication between players and coaches at the sidelines; a reduction in the length of timeouts; restrictions on signaling fair catches; a cut-down on the substitution rule and a revision of clipping rules and punt coverage.

Vacancies for ski trip

STROUDSBURG — John Jacobi, program director of the YMCA, announced Friday that there are still six vacancies left on the "Y" sponsored ski trip to Mount Snow Vermont.

The trip is for boys 14 years and older, and will take place the weekend of January 26. The group will leave by bus on Friday afternoon from the YMCA and arrive in Wilmington, Vermont, about 11 p.m.

Friday and Saturday night will be spent at the "Vermont House," a small hotel near the slopes of Mount Snow, and breakfasts and dinner will be served in the hotel dining room. The group will return to Stroudsburg about 11 p.m. Sunday. Anyone interested in joining the group is asked to call 421-2525.

Wimbledon to award $62,760

LONDON (AP) — Wimbledon, once the shrine of amateur tennis, announced that $62,760 would be paid out in prize money at the first Open Wimbledon this summer.

Maj. David Mills, secretary of the All-England Club who organizes Wimbledon, let the world know about the plans.

The decision to make Wimbledon an open championship was taken by the British Lawn Tennis Association in defiance of the International Federation.

The Wimbledon decision to go it alone on open tennis means British players may be ostracized from tournaments abroad.

You are declarer at Six, no-trump and West leads the five of hearts.

Hand No. 1. Win the club with the ace and draw three rounds of trumps, discarding a club from dummy. Lead a spade to the queen, cash the ace of spades discarding your spade. When you now lead the four of diamonds, West cannot prevent you from reaching dummy to discard your three club losers on the 10-9-8 of spades.

Note that you must discard the ace of diamonds on the ace of spades. If you discard a club instead, West can defeat you by dropping his king of spades on the ace to avoid being end-played.

Hand No. 2. Win the heart with the queen and cash the ace. Then cash five spade tricks and the A-K of diamonds, discarding a club and two diamonds from dummy.

Now play a low heart, finessing the nine, and follow this by leading the king of clubs, discarding your king of hearts. When West takes the ace, he must put you back in dummy with either a heart or a club, and you then have twelve tricks, as advertised. Your two diamond losers go on the jack of hearts and queen of clubs.

TEST YOUR PLAY

Here are a couple of double-dummy problems. Remember that in double - dummy problems you are expected to take advantage of seeing all four hands. Best defense is also assumed.

Hand No. 1

♠ A Q 10 9 8 6
♦ Q 3
♣ A 7 4
♠ K 4 2
♥ 6 3
♦ K J 10 9 8 5 2
♥ A K Q J 10 8
♦ A 4
♣ Q 10 8 3

You are declarer at Six Hearts, West having opened the bidding with three diamonds. West leads the six of clubs.

Hand No. 2

♥ J 9 7 4
♦ 7 6 4 2
♣ K Q 7
♠ 8 4
♥ 10 8 6 5 3
♦ 10
♣ A 9 8 6 4
♠ A K Q J 9
♥ A K Q 2
♦ A K 8 3

You are declarer at Six, no-trump and West leads the five of hearts.

Hand No. 1. Win the club with the ace and draw three rounds of trumps, discarding a club from dummy. Lead a spade to the queen, cash the ace of spades discarding your spade. When you now lead the four of diamonds, West cannot prevent you from reaching dummy to discard your three club losers on the 10-9-8 of spades.

Note that you must discard the ace of diamonds on the ace of spades. If you discard a club instead, West can defeat you by dropping his king of spades on the ace to avoid being end-played.

Hand No. 2. Win the heart with the queen and cash the ace. Then cash five spade tricks and the A-K of diamonds, discarding a club and two diamonds from dummy.

Now play a low heart, finessing the nine, and follow this by leading the king of clubs, discarding your king of hearts. When West takes the ace, he must put you back in dummy with either a heart or a club, and you then have twelve tricks, as advertised. Your two diamond losers go on the jack of hearts and queen of clubs.

Ann Landers

Defending doctors

Dear Ann Landers: I resent your sarcastic reply to "California Yell For Help," the woman who lashed out at the surgeon who removed her friend's healthy breast. According to you, it simply could not have happened. You said all surgeons must do a biopsy first and that no reputable physician would perform such an operation unless the biopsy showed a malignancy. You as much as called the woman a liar.

May I direct your attention to the word "Reputable." I would not argue the point that the majority of physicians are reasonably honest, some are even highly principled, and a few are totally dedicated, but that still leaves a number of knife-hungry, money-hungry scoundrels, not to mention chronic alcoholics who bury their mistakes and no one is any the wiser.

So please, Ann Landers, don't try to give the public the impression that every physician who hangs out a shingle is a paragon of virtue, incapable of error. Tell it like it is.

CALLING DR. KILDARE
Dear Calling: There are incompetents, phonies and bad actors in every field, and the medical profession is no exception. Unfortunately, when a physician is unscrupulous or botches a job someone becomes severely ill or dies.

I know of no profession, however, that does such a conscientious job of policing its own members. Peer approval among physicians is of utmost importance. Medical organizations, county, state and national, are persistent and diligent in their fight against charlatans and quacks. Medical standards are constantly being elevated by Medical Audit Committees in the nation's hospitals. Additional safeguards are provided by tightening the requirements for hospital certification involving total patient care.

When one considers that before the Abraham Flexner report in 1910, "doctors" in some states were permitted to practice medicine by virtue of a certificate purchased for as little as $5.00, I say the medical profession has made enormous strides. All professions should do as well.

Dean Ann Landers: I am being married in April and have asked five friends to be bridesmaids. One of the bridesmaids says it's stupid to spend $35 for a dress that she can copy for one third the price.

She has announced that she is going to make her dress. I have seen some of the dresses she has whipped up on her sewing machine and they look very "homemade." Also, it's impossible to match fabrics and her dress is bound to look different from the others.

If my mother suggests I tell her that if she can't afford to buy the dress I will understand and excuse her from being in the wedding party.

This girl has been a good friend for 15 years and I want to keep her friendship.

HORRORSVILLE
Dear H'ville: The dress costs $35. The girl said she can make one like it for one third the price. That means she would save $23.34 if she made the dress. Offer to pay the difference in the interest of "uniformity." Her friendship is worth $23.34, isn't it?

Dear Landers: Our daughter has been married for two years to a so-called Southern gentleman who is still calling me "Hey You." It would please me if he called me Mother or I'd gladly settle for "Mrs. —" or even Betty, but this "Hey You" is getting on my nerves.

I'd like to tell him in a subtle way to change his salutation. How should I do it?

ARKANSAS TRANSPLANT
Dear Transplant: Why be subtle with a lummox? Tell him you've had enough of the "Hey You" and if he doesn't want to call you Betty, Mrs. — will do.

The Pocono Record... a real fine gift

Cy Barrett Says

Produce new profits

DEAR CY:

For 36 years I have worked for a nice old-line manufacturing company which recently was taken over by a ruthless bunch of outsiders. Big outside interest bought up a lot of stock and pushed the gentlemanly management out. It was quite a surprise since the old management had shown a steady profit increase in the last 10 years and thought it was riding high.

The newcomers (our president, executive vice president and comptroller) are a tough group and make decisions on the spot. Before, everything was done by committee after many research studies, so it's quite a change. When asked why the new interests took over in spite of good earnings, the president replied, "We want revolution, not evolution." How do you see my sitting in the picture, holding some stock? I could retire now or keep working if I wanted.

MR. PRUDENT

DEAR MR. PRUDENT:

Stick around for a little modern survival training. With the young lions in control, you should see plenty of action and maybe some profits for whatever company stock you now hold. At least you will get information from the center of live action. Normally this is considered the day for executives to make decisions only after they have grown a convenient tree to hide behind. They hire outside experts to second guess problems today and be possible scapegoats for tomorrow. They indulge in committee action to spread the blame like peanut butter. No great literature was ever written by a committee, but many a company's current history is being compiled by group-think.

So what happens? The company with a potential which needs dynamic leadership can often profit by unique individuals who will act and courageously face up to the responsibility of their decisions. These are not the sort of men who look like they were cut from the same gray flannel cloth. Often they are highly unique and less compassionate in their attitude toward other members of the firm rather than sharks in a feeding frenzy. Men like this take responsibility, and sometimes ruthlessly, but they just as bravely give responsibility without pulling the rug out from under the recipient.

They're men who like to punch the big company button because mountains are moved when they do. Very often this type of man doesn't stick to a job long because he has a low degree of stability. One dynamic friend of mine fits this description and has an electrically powered exercycle in his office. One day I asked him, "What's that for?" He replied, "For days when I have a lot of office work to do."

DEAR CY:

For the first time, I am earning my own living. It is a wonderful experience to be completely independent and I am "living it up," as they say. Do you see anything wrong in living up to or a little beyond one's means when unmarried?

CROSLLEY

DEAR CROSLLEY:
Don't forget you have a government to support.

Your Horoscope By Francis Drake

Monday, January 22, 1968

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — You may not gain everything you hope for but, on the whole, this should be a profit-making day. You should make a notable impact.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Temperament and desires will determine whether you gain or lose ground now. Release your feelings in ways worthy of your better self, else leave! Try to understand others.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Maintain a steady pace if you would accumulate the substantial reserves and resources you desire. Shun clear of time-wasters and time-squanders.

June 22 to July 21 (Cancer) — Keep personal affairs separate from business activities and you will be less bothered by dispute, turmoil, discovery or involved way to present your wares.

July 22 to August 21 (Leo) — Laughter and indulgence can lead to losses now. Avoid distractions and concentrate on getting matters done on time and properly.

August 22 to September 21 (Virgo) — Conduct your affairs with dignity, and rational force and consideration of others involved. Make sure you project the fine assets that are really yours.

September 22 to October 21 (Libra) — As you delve into fresh matters, avoid a tendency to overthink or not give enough time to details which, though small, are important.

October 22 to November 21 (Scorpio) — Look for trends early; things may not be as you expected last week. Some situations are changing obviously, others subtly. Be careful to avoid dangers.

November 22 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Good planetary influences. Careful planning and moves at the right times and places will keep you in the lead for gains, with ease of effort.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Careful exploration and soundly directed imagination needed now. Conduct your affairs so to win now and build. Don't mix business and personal affairs.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Those who are guarded and distant have a head start now. And perseverance backed by reason and intelligent understanding of your assignments will be another big aid.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Give special attention to statements which seem to sway you considerably. Look deep for real meanings; do not settle for anything which even hints at the obvious.

YOUR BIRTH DAY ARE often brilliant, never dull or bored. You are too busy with your own life to be lulled into complacency. You are busy with your own life to be lulled into complacency. You are busy with your own life to be lulled into complacency.

Two holdup men flee with $90

BUTZVILLE — A Butzville service station holdup is under investigation by state police at Blairstown, seeking two young men who fled with $90 after locking up the station owner and his wife, early Thursday.

According to state police, the two men walked into Walt's Atlantic Station on Route 46, at the Route 31 junction, at 1 a.m. With hands in their coat pockets, the two intruders ordered owner Walter Yerkes, 62, to hand over the money from the cash register.

The men locked the couple in the men's room and fled in a car. Yerkes forced open the door and called state police in Washington who notified the station in Blairstown.

Descriptions given by the owner said both men were in their early 20s. One was six feet in height, 180 pounds, blond hair, wearing a two-tone brown suede coat. The second man was about five feet eight inches, 150 pounds and dark hair.

JACK O'BRIAN'S

Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — Marlon Brando's old 57th near 6th pad he shared with Wally Cox is being demolished without even a plaque...Teresa Brewer finally defeated her planophobia and flies everywhere — because she had to get to Europe fast...Future tycoons: Kids in Central Park rented their Flexible Flyers to adults at two-bits a bellyflop...One kid went home $15 fusher.

Andy Williams' brother Dick dropped a bundle when Judy Garland didn't bother about three Madison Square Garden shows; he was one of the backers...Dress designer Geoffrey Beene brought a model wearing one of his new wow-creations into Proof of the Pudding — and the males went goggly at her necktie that plunged below the tummy-button...Molly Picon's and Godfrey Cambridge's "How to be a Jewish Mother" folded so quickly, papers still ran ads three days after it went goggly.

Bill Cosby's '68 income will make him the highest paid U.S. Negro performer: a 25-day concert tour this month alone guarantees him more than $500,000...Moshe Dayan, head of the Green Yarmulka, will be in the U.S. this March for fundraising celebrations of Israel's 20th anniversary of Independence...Number of German pennings (worth a third of a cent) turning up in N.Y. subway turnstiles isn't funny.

Chris Lofting (whose father Hugh wrote the "Dr. Dolittle" originals) will get 5 percent of the film's profits if any — meanwhile his slice of merchandise and toy-tie ins already has paid him a six-figure fortune...Age of Vulgarly: E. 53rd St. novelty joint displays "Original Iron Crosses" — First Class' nothing. "Same type awarded Hitler and Goering," $8.50 each, with ribbon...more than 15 million Americans have hearing difficulties (What'd he say?)

Properly addressed letter...Our secretary sent her son a Yule package early in Dec. and it was delivered in the exurbs after New York's

It's the Age of the Shrug. Gig Young tells everyone (via Merv Griffin's nat'l TV show for instance) he fell in love with Sophia Loren when he made a movie with her; but so did Cary Grant — Who even proposed...Soph instead chose that taller, handsomer, thinner, no doubt Carlo Pont...Broke our heart, too.

Johnny Carson said on TV he's considering going to Vietnam; meanwhile Bob Hope's been there many times, without fanfare, and let's see, how long have our fighting lads been there now?...The most attractive side of Bob Hope's GI entertaining is that he seldom strays mawkishly outside the real Bob Hope, sermons — says it all by just being there; often.

The George Hamilton-Shawn Ryan (daughter of the int'l banker who's richer than LBJ) romance in Instantly More Romantic than Lynda Bird's ever was...Not one movie in six years led Danny Kaye to take the "Madwoman of Chaillot" ragpicker-role which isn't the lead.
